NAVAL AIR STATION, LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 15.—Shimmering in the sunlight, the great silver coated dirigible ZR-3 soared majestically into the Lakehurst landing field at 9:17 o'clock this morning, completing her epochal 4,200-mile trip across the Atlantic from Friedrichshafen, Germany.

The big cigar shaped air liner did not land immediately, but floated aloft like a lazy whale, as if taking her time for a spot to descend. Mighty cheers went up from the throng gathered at the landing field, and strung along the highways to witness the historic event.

Airplanes circled the "queen of the air," careful to keep at a distance out of respect for the highly explosive hydrogen in the ZR-3's gas bags.

From the gondolas of the pudgy, fish-shaped air liner, two or three of the 32 aboard could be seen waving greetings to the crowds below.

GREAT SIZE OF HUGE ZR-3

An idea of the size of the ZR-3, greatest of zeppelins, and newest addition to Uncle Sam's air forces, is given by this sketch, comparing it with the S. S. Leviathan and the Woolworth building, in New York City. The ZR-3 is 655 feet long. If it stood up alongside the Crook building, the tallest in East Liverpool, the airship's prow would rear itself 576 feet above the roof of the building. It would stand 584 feet above the Little building in the Diamond. Or it would rear itself 504 feet above both the Crook and Little buildings if they were put end to end.

Other figures on the ZR-3, which designation will be discarded soon in favor of a regular name are: Diameter, 90.65 feet. Height, 101.68 feet. Weight, 88,190 pounds. Total lift, 180,000 pounds. Gas capacity, 2,472,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas. Power—Has four cars, each with 12-cylinder, 400 H. P., especially designed Maybach motors. Construction—Mostly duralumin; some steel. Wireless—Has a radius of 1,560 miles for telegraph and 15 miles for telephone. Passenger capacity 20 persons at least, with a liberal allowance for cargo. Passenger accommodations—Main cabin close to the hull, underneath the bow. Divided into two sections, the smaller being the control car. The larger division is for passengers and is divided into five compartments, each a cross between a railway coach and steamer cabin. Each compartment has sleeping accommodations for four persons. Kitchen and pantries are provided for serving meals. Speed—Not less than 76 miles an hour, with all motors running full; or 68 miles with five motors at cruising speed; 63 miles with four motors, 56 miles with three motors. Radius of action with five motors, full speed 46 hours, 3,500 miles. With cruising speed, 78 hours, 5,280 miles.

Forty Steubenville Rotarians to Play Golf Here Friday

Approximately 40 members of the Steubenville Rotary Club will come here Friday afternoon for a golf tournament with members of the East Liverpool club.

The Steubenville club men will hold their regular noon-day meeting in the Fort Steuben Hotel, Friday, leaving there at 12:45 o'clock in a special car. Arriving here at 2 o'clock, the visitors will be taken to the Country club in automobiles where they will spend the afternoon.

They will be guests at a "stag" dinner to be served in the club's dining room at 6:30 o'clock. J. M. Wells, who arranged for the visit of the Steubenville club, and who will head the local golfers, will act as chairman of the meeting. He will be assisted by R. L. E. Chambers and James S. Hilbert.

Members of the local club are urged to make reservations with Secretary Barth, before Thursday noon.

Y. M. C. A. OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR 300 MEMBERS

Seventy-five Workers Enlisted in Three-day Canvass.

TWO DIVISIONS First Reports Will be Made at Luncheon Wednesday.

A membership campaign to enroll 300 members—200 adults and 100 boys—was launched by the Young Men's Christian association at a luncheon meeting of approximately 75 workers, held in the "Y" banquet hall at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening. The drive is scheduled to end Friday evening.

The workers have been divided into two divisions. One unit in charge of Fred Stoddard, Richard Brian, Albert Pittenger, Earl Greenwalt and Joseph Dickey, has entered the famous cartoon character, "Andy Gump" for president, while the other side, led by Albert Froese, F. Q. Mason, Fletcher Chadwick and Frank Diamond, all working for the election of DeBeck's famous character, "Barney Google." One electoral vote will be allowed for each member who is enrolled.

First report will be made at luncheon Wednesday evening. No report will be made on Thursday, while the final meeting will be held at 6 o'clock Friday evening. W. H. Nagel, general secretary of the "Y," is campaign chairman.

Nine Teams Chosen. Nine teams have been organized. Names of approximately 400 persons, who have been at one time members of the Y, have been distributed among the workers. They are not re-

Lady Elks To Entertain. Wellsville Ladies of the Elks, will entertain Thursday afternoon, in the B. P. O. Elks' home in Eighth street and Riverside avenue.

An invitation has been extended to members of the East Liverpool organization.

Mrs. Charles Kraus, the hostess, will be assisted by Mrs. George Fassett. Five hundred will be the chief diversion. A chicken dinner will be served at 6 o'clock.

LABOR UNIONS PROTEST BOARD PLAN TO CLOSE GRADE SCHOOL

Four Pottery Unions and Engineers Favor Third St. Building.

OTHERS TO ACT

Board of Education Will Hear Reports Thursday.

The proposed abandonment of the Third street school by the board of education, as a means of providing funds with which to establish a course in manual training in the high school, is meeting with a storm of protest on the part of organized labor, it developed Wednesday.

Members of the casters and pressers union No. 4, handlers and turners union No. 10, stationary engineers' union, Jiggerman's union No. 12 and the mouldmakers' union have adopted a resolution opposing the proposal.

Attorney Ben L. Bennett, who has been retained as counsel for the residents of the Third street school district, appeared at these meetings.

Central Body May Act.

Mr. Bennett will also attend a meeting of Trades and Labor council Wednesday evening, asking that they go on record against the plan. The Rotary club, at its luncheon Tuesday, approved a letter, which will be forwarded to the board, opposing the suggested transfer of the 147 children enrolled in the Third street building to the Central and Sixth street schools.

According to the school board, the state requires courses in manual training in the class rating. Because of the financial condition of the schools, it is impossible to provide funds for this course, dropped two years ago, unless a saving is effected elsewhere, it is claimed. It is believed that the saving in overhead expenses at the Third street school would be sufficient to employ an instructor for this department.

The school board deferred action on the proposal a week ago, pending an expression of sentiment.

Price of Arrests Goes up; Mayor's Costs Now $5.40

Price of being arrested in East Liverpool is going up.

In pursuance of orders issued by the state, all police court officers, found guilty of some infraction of the law, no matter how small it may be, must pay costs totaling $5.40 in the future, Mayor Brown declared Wednesday.

Heretofore costs in a case, not requiring witnesses, amounted to $2.40. A state examiner, who recently inspected the records of the chief executive's office, declared that the costs charged here were too low—lower in fact than any other municipality in Ohio.

According to Mayor Brown, but one other city in the state has a lower cost than East Liverpool, even under the new rates. Court costs in Canton amount to but $5.29 on each case, it is claimed.

Up until the latter part of Mayor Wilson's term of office, no costs were attached to fines. However, upon advice of the state examiner costs of $2.40 were added to the fines of offenders. Costs in all cases will go into the city's coffers.

SHE LOVED HIM TOO MUCH, HIS REPLY TO CHARGES OF WIFE, STEP-SISTER

Mrs. Hattie Miller.

"Everything was going along nicely in our married life except that she loved me too much." That is friend husband's answer to the charges of Mrs. Hattie Miller (above), Chicago telephone operator. Hattie married her mother's stepson only to learn that he was courting another girl, she avers.

East Palestine Pastor Will Speak At Kiwanis Meeting

Rev. W. H. Ohlschlager, East Palestine, will be the speaker at the meeting of the Kiwanis club in the Y. M. C. A. at noon Thursday. He will take the place of Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, who will attend a Methodist Episcopal conference in Steubenville.

Glad handlers at Thursday's meeting will include O. O. Allison, Clarence Anderson, Charles Ashbaugh and James A. Anderson.

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, who will open a six weeks evangelistic campaign here next Sunday, will be the speaker at the meeting on Thursday October 23.

The fire will not effect orders, which have been placed or may be placed with the company, however, as arrangements have been made to place emergency equipment in Plant No. 1 in operation, according to Frank W. Thropp, president of the company. The No. 1 plant has a capacity of 1,200 tons per week and 10,000 tons of crude material is on hand.

The new No. 2 works will be the most modern plant of its kind in the world.

MADRID, Oct. 15.—King Alphonse of Spain, accompanied by officers of the general staff, left for Seville to open the congress of medical sciences there.

NATION RESTS UPON RELIGION

—President Coolidge

Chieftain Speaks at Dedication of Asbury Monument.

By GEORGE E. DURNO.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—"The government of a country never gets ahead of the religion of a country."

With that statement as his text, President Coolidge, this afternoon, delivered the principal address at the dedication here of a monument to Francis Asbury, first American bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, and set forth "the necessity for reliance upon religion rather than upon law."

"Our government rests upon religion," the president declared. "It is from that source that we derive our reverence for truth and justice, for equality and liberty, and for the rights of mankind. Unless the people believe in these principles they cannot believe in our government."

Widow, on Trial For Murder, Tells Story of Abuse

MIDDLEBURG, Pa., Oct. 15.—Taking the stand in her own defense, Mrs. Annie Willow today told a graphic story of abuse and brutality by Harvey Willow, her husband, for whose murder she is indicted.

Under questioning of her counsel, she told all the details of her early life, her courtship by Willow and their married life.

MASS OF STEEL CRASHES INTO OHIO RIVER AS SCORES ESCAPE

Albert Coulter, Worker on Structure, Plunges to Death.

TRACTION BRIDGE

Crowded Street Car Passes Just Before Accident.

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 15.—Just after a crowded street car had passed, a section of the steel bridge over the Ohio river here, connecting the city proper and island, collapsed at 10:30 this morning, with a crash that was heard for blocks. Albert Coulter, of Moundsville, W. Va., one of the force of 32 men employed in repairing the structure, was dropped 50 feet to his death. Debris is being searched in the fear that others may have been killed.

Traffic is Cut Off.

The bridge since spring has been undergoing extensive repairs, work having progressed across the river channel and was under way on the island section this morning.

One hundred and twenty feet of the south sidewalk and supports beneath the double street car tracks went down in the crash.

Street car traffic into the city from the island and Ohio towns is cut off, while it was stated the crash would result in an order barring local bridges to heavy truck traffic.

The bridge is owned by the Wheeling Traction company, a subsidiary of the West Penn interests.

DAVIS REACHES MISSISSIPPI

Democratic Nominee Declares War on "Class Government."

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON. QUINCY, Ill., Oct. 15.—Deep in his drive to capture the middle west, John W. Davis reached the Mississippi river today with a new declaration of war upon "class government."

The Democratic nominee came here from Springfield, greatly cheered by his receptions throughout Illinois. He told Democratic state leaders that he had found no sign of "general apathy" along the way but rather enthusiastic audiences which were either Democratic or else leaning toward his party.

In conferences aboard his special train, Davis told his campaign managers that he was deadly in earnest at Mattoon, Ill., when he declared he would take the stump against his own party if "corruption raised its ugly head," within the Democratic ranks while he occupied the White House.

The Illinois leaders complimented him on the stand.

"There was no scandal, no corruption, no favoritism, in the eight long years the Democrats had a president in the White House, Davis said, "and if I am elected there will be none. There will be none in all this land with private access to his government and government will be administered with equal fairness to all."

Two Persons Dead Following Auto Crash in Elyria

ELYRIA, O., Oct. 15.—Two persons were dead today the result of an automobile accident at Stop 8, Lake avenue. The dead are Mrs. Eva Sweet, 65, and James McGrann, 40, city meter reader and manager of the Moulton Candles ball team.

The accident occurred at 8:30 last night. McGrann explained before he died that he became confused by the glaring lights and after striking Mrs. Sweet with his car, his auto skidded into the street car, where he sustained fatal injuries.

CO-OPERATING CHURCHES IN FINAL PRAYER SERVICE WEDNESDAY PRELIMINARY TO BIEDERWOLF MEET

Preliminary to the opening of the W. E. Biederwolf Union Evangelistic campaign at the Second and Washington streets' tabernacle on Sunday evening, a final prayer service of the Co-operating congregations will be held at the First Presbyterian church Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock.

Big delegations from the various churches will attend. The meeting accordingly will take on the proportions of a rally. Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church, and chairman of the campaign devotional committee will preside. Dr. Frank Fowler, the newly appointed pastor of the First Methodist church, and Dr. Donald W. McLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will speak. James Heaton, assistant to Homer Rodeheaver in the annual Winona Lake, Ind., Bible Conference and advance representative of Dr. Biederwolf, will have charge of the singing. He will also sing one or more solos.

Illuminate Tabernacle.

Work on the tabernacle showed marked progress on Tuesday and Wednesday. On Tuesday night the first auditorium was illuminated for the big time so as to admit the contribution of several hours' work by the members of Dr. Donald McLeod's Sunday School Class of the First Presbyterian church. As a result all the framework for the seats was placed in position.

Men from various churches will volunteer several hours' work daily and nightly, the remainder of this week until the interior labor is concluded.

The music committee of which Prof. Hugh Laughlin, of the city schools, has been named chairman and Mrs. A. H. Ellis, assistant chairman, will meet at 7:30 on Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. to make final arrangements for the singing of the campaign.

Fred Smith Chief Usher. The ushers will be directed during the series of meetings by Fred Smith of the First U. P. church as chief usher. He filled a similar capacity in the Bob Jones revival in 1920 and knows the exacting duties of the position.

The women's personal workers, 100 strong, will be in charge of Rev. W. C. Stokes, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church. They will nightly be accorded a reserved space in the tabernacle from where they will operate as needed.

Rounding out to a mutual point of completion, all the various pre-revival work is rapidly gaining headway so that with the beginning of Dr. Biederwolf's preaching immediate activity will be noted. Houses throughout East Liverpool, Chester and Newell have displayed in their windows the photographs of Dr. Biederwolf. Before the end of the week banners announcing co-operation in the meeting will be suspended before all the allied churches in the campaign.

Predict Great Campaign. "It will be a great meeting, this East Liverpool-Chester-Newell campaign of Dr. Biederwolf," declared James Heaton, the evangelists representative on Wednesday. "Of that I am sure. The preliminary work is such as to indicate a deep undercurrent of feeling of the need of a revival in this community. And this subdued sentiment for a religious awakening hereabouts is becoming daily more perceptible. When Dr. Biederwolf comes I am sure this sentiment will become so accentuated as to affect everyone. What with the preaching of Dr. Biederwolf, the superior music of the big choir that Mr. McKean, Gipsy Smith's music director, will lead, the united and increased personal work of the united churchmen plus the prayers of all Christian people, a genuine awakening can be expected that is certain to have as a reaction the Salvation of many souls."

Dr. Woods Urges Evangelism.

That evangelism is the prime duty of every church, all other activities therein being its by-products was the declaration of Dr. Isaac Woods, who, up from a sick bed and convalescing before his departure on Wednesday to assume his new duties as Superintendent of the Barnesville district of the North-East Ohio Conference of

LABOR UNIONS PROTEST BOARD PLAN TO CLOSE GRADE SCHOOL

Four Pottery Unions and Engineers Favor Third St. Building.

OTHERS TO ACT

Board of Education Will Hear Reports Thursday.

The proposed abandonment of the Third street school by the board of education, as a means of providing funds with which to establish a course in manual training in the high school, is meeting with a storm of protest on the part of organized labor, it developed Wednesday.

Members of the casters and pressers union No. 4, handlers and Turners union No. 10, stationary engineers' union, Jiggermen's union No. 12 and the mouldmakers' union have adopted a resolution opposing the proposal.

Attorney Ben L. Bennett, who has been retained as counsel for the residents of the Third street school district, appeared at these meetings.

Central Body May Act.

Mr. Bennett will also attend a meeting of Trades and Labor council Wednesday evening, asking that they go on record against the plan. The Rotary club, at its luncheon Tuesday, approved a letter which will be forwarded to the board, opposing the suggested transfer of the 147 children enrolled in the Third street building to the Central and Sixth street schools.

According to the school board, the state requires courses in manual training if the school is to be continued in the class rating. Because of the financial condition of the schools, it is impossible to provide funds for this course, dropped two years ago, unless a saving is effected elsewhere, it is claimed. It is believed that the saving in overhead expenses at the Third street school would be sufficient to employ an instructor for this department.

The school board deferred action on the proposal a week ago, pending an expression of sentiment.

Price of Arrests Goes up; Mayor's Costs Now $5.40

Price of being arrested in East Liverpool is going up.

In pursuance of orders issued by the state, all police court officers, found guilty of some infraction of the law, no matter how small it may be, must pay costs totaling $5.40 in the future, Mayor Brown declared Wednesday.

Heretofore costs in a case, not requiring witnesses, amounted to $2.40. A state examiner, who recently inspected the records of the chief executive's office, declared that the costs charged here were too low—lower in fact than any other municipality in Ohio.

According to Mayor Brown, but one other city in the state has a lower cost than East Liverpool, even under the new rates. Court costs in Canton amount to but $5.29 on each case, it is claimed.

Up until the latter part of Mayor Wilson's term of office, no costs were attached to fines. However, upon advice of the state examiner costs of $2.40 were added to the fines of offenders. Costs in all cases will go into the city's coffers.

Trenton Firm Will Rebuild Flint Plant Destroyed by Fire

Plant No. 2 of the Eureka Flint and Spar Company, of Trenton, N. J., from which many potteries of the local district receive their flint, was destroyed by fire last Saturday night, but will be rebuilt at once, local manufacturers have been advised.

The fire will not effect orders, which have been placed or may be placed with the company, however, as arrangements have been made to place emergency equipment in Plant No. 1 in operation, according to Frank W. Thropp, president of the company.

The No. 1 plant has a capacity of 1,200 tons per week and 10,000 tons of crude material is on hand.

The new No. 2 works will be the most modern plant of its kind in the world.

Two Persons Dead Following Auto Crash in Elyria

ELYRIA, O., Oct. 15.—Two persons were dead today the result of an automobile accident at Stop 8, Lake avenue. The dead are Mrs. Eva Sweet, 65, and James McGrann, 40, city meter reader and manager of the Moulton Candles ball team.

The accident occurred at 8:30 last night. McGrann explained before he died that he became confused by the glaring lights and after striking Mrs. Sweet with his car, his auto skidded into the street car, where he sustained fatal injuries.

WYOMING DEMS NAME WOMAN TO OUTDO TEXAS

Mrs. Nellie Ross, Governor's Widow, Party Nominee.

MOURNS HUSBAND

Declares Honor is Tribute to Departed Spouse.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 15.—"Beat Texas to it" was the slogan of Wyoming Democrats today following the nomination late yesterday of Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, widow of the late Governor W. B. Ross, as the party's gubernatorial candidate.

Wyoming, pioneer woman's suffrage state, would also be the first to inaugurate a woman as governor, the delegates declared.

Mrs. Ross, a refined, capable woman, was prepared to "carry on" the duties of her husband, provided she said the people of Wyoming expressed that desire by their votes on November 4.

"While I believe as a general proposition that most public offices can be filled by women quite as satisfactorily as men," the widow told International News Service at the executive mansion here, "a public career for myself never previously had any appeal."

Honor Wholly Unsought.

"I appreciate, far beyond my ability to express, the honor conferred upon me by unanimous vote of the delegates," she continued, "but I regard it as a tribute to my departed husband, giving further substantial evidence of the high esteem in which he was held by the people of this state."

The charming, though greatly grieved gubernatorial nominee, declared that the honor had come to her wholly unsought.

"My greatest desire and hope," she said, "is that with the support of true friends and divine aid I may measure up to what is expected of me."

"If elected I will strive to perform the duties of chief executive of the state with the same honesty of purpose and pursuing the same high ideals that would have governed the action of William, (her husband) had his life been spared to carry out what he had planned."

Friends Do Campaigning.

In response to a question Mrs. Ross said she would be unable to actively participate in the campaign and that her political welfare rested in the hands of her friends and party workers. She had been assured, she said, that back of her was a united party while many Republican and Independent voters throughout the state had already given promise of support.

Mrs. Ross was born in St. Joseph, Mo., about 40 years ago. She was married to William B. Ross in Omaha, Neb., in Sept. 1902. She has three sons, two attending the University of Wyoming and the other a public school student here.

While she has always been devoted to her domestic duties and her children, she was a constant "pal" of her late husband during his campaigning years and has a wide acquaintance in political circles throughout the state.

The Republican state convention yesterday nominated E. J. Sullivan of Basin as Candidate for governor. Both state conventions were called at the result of governor Ross' death last month.

ZR-3 Lands

ble horns as the big liner seemed to stand almost perfectly still in mid-air, in the center of the field. The roar of the motors by this time had become almost deafening. The very buildings seemed to vibrate. Although momentarily indicating that it was about to descend, Commander Dr. Hugo Eckener apparently changed his mind, and the ZR-3 again slowly turned its nose about and floated about in the air. At 9:25, eight minutes after she was sighted, she was still in the air, hardly higher than a first class office building skyscraper.

It took the ZR-3, forty-two minutes to make the landing after she was sighted at 9:17. After repeatedly circling the field, she finally turned her nose south and went over a dense grove of trees to a distance of about half a mile from the field. Then she turned back and headed slowly for the center of the field, and suddenly all her huge motors ceased humming. She appeared to stand poised in the air. Then she slowly descended, touching the ground at exactly 9:55.

Members of the crew threw out the forward landing line which was seized by a hundred or more "gobs" in blue uniforms with white caps. They quickly made the ship fast to the ground.

Bells clanged, automobile horns honked and people cheered wildly as the flight came to an official end.

Klein First to Land.

The first air pilgrim to reach the ground was Commander Jacob Henry Klein, Jr., U. S. navy. He leaped exultantly to the ground and shouted to newspapermen:

"Great trip."

He suddenly saw his wife in the crowd and rushed to her. Photographers crowded about to take pictures of the ship and crew who stood looking out the windows, and Captain Klein was hurriedly summoned back to his ship.

Mrs. Klein was asked did she have any apprehension for her husband while the ZR-3 was enroute. She smilingly said:

"I never really was afraid. But you can never get used to it when your husband is traveling in a dirigible."

EPOCHAL FEAT, SAYS COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The flight of the dirigible ZR-3 from Germany to the United States is an "epochal achievement" because it demonstrates as never before the feasibility of long distance flights by lighter than aircraft, President Coolidge declared today in a telegram of congratulations to Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the airship.

"The skill and efficiency of the German technicians in building such a wonderful aircraft and your skill in successfully navigating it without stop or mishap from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J., is an event of world-wide interest," said the message. "It is a matter of great satisfaction to me and to the people of the United States that the peaceful relations between Germany and America have been fully re-established and that this great airship has inaugurated the first direct air flight between Germany and America. I hope that your stay in the United States will be enjoyable and that the notable services you have rendered in bringing over this airship will be a matter of satisfaction and pride to you throughout your life."

Commander Eckener remained on board the ship while the crowd swarmed about it. To newspapermen, Eckener called out from the gondola of the ship:

"We are very proud and very happy. It was a wonderful trip."

Then he turned and busied himself with giving orders to his men within the ship.

Commander is Jubilant

Commander Eckener and the entire German crew of officers and men are jubilant. The Germans were spic and span in their light blue uniforms with white collars and blue and white caps. The Germans remained in their ship as the marines, hauling on ropes that had been tossed out from the ship, proceeded to "walk" the ZR-3 toward its hangar where it was to be carefully cradled.

The Americans, however, leaped out and rushed to loved ones in the crowd that was swarming excitedly back and forth on the field. As Captain George W. Steele, Jr., future commander of the ZR-3, jumped from the dirigible, a little white haired woman ran to him. Mrs. Steele his mother, beat Mrs. Steele, his wife, by a step into his arms. Photographers clicked their cameras madly as the officer kissed his mother and wife in turn.

"Kiss your wife, again," a tardy camera man requested.

"She won't let me," the captain smiled.

"I will so," exclaimed Mrs. Steele. And Steele did.

One Army Officer Aboard

Major F. M. Kennedy, only army officer on board the air monarch, insisted he was the happiest of all the Americans to see his native land again.

"Why shouldn't I be the happiest man?" he declared. "I've been abroad for two years. I haven't had a square meal in that time."

The dirigible was finally tucked away fast in the hangar at 10:40 a. m.

A touch of aeronautical courtesy was given the arrival when Commander Eckener dipped the big dirigible's nose three times in greeting to the crowd just before the descent.

BY LARRY SMITS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Safe over her new homeland after a record voyage across the Atlantic and a struggle with adverse winds which buffeted her far northward, the big dirigible ZR-3 cruised over New York early today while the city rubbed the sleep from its eyes and joined in a cheer that must have carried up to the gondolas of the huge airship.

Passing Boston at 4:18 a. m., the dirigible headed southward along the coast, left Newport, R. I., behind at dawn and thence along the shore of Long Island, across the shore of the Hudson river, and thence up the Hudson river, while the city shrieked its greeting. The dirigible passed the ferry house at St. George, Staten Island, at 7:45 a. m., and headed toward the statue of Liberty. She was flying low through a heavy haze. In the haze thickened early morning light, she gleamed dully as she slid through the fog up the Hudson river.

As the big silver ship reached the end of Manhattan Island over the Hudson, she swung gracefully and pointed her nose down toward the battery again, following Broadway as she blessed the cheering city in her course.

Waves of Welcoming Sound.

Shouldering her way through the morning mists at a brisk speed, the last Zeppelin which Germany can make under the terms of the Versailles treaty moved over a cheering city in a swing of triumph before heading toward Lakehurst, N. J. There the German experts, who built her and brought her safely over miles of Ocean, will turn her over to the United States navy.

Wave after wave of welcoming sound rose in a crescendo of enthusiasm as the dirigible, robbed of her silver sheen by the low hanging haze, sped the length of the city toward the Canyons of Wall Street. At the battery she again turned west, swung in a great circle around lower New York and again west, toward Lakehurst.

Instead of making directly for the field, where she will be moored, the ZR-3 played around in the air lanes above New York, evidently bent on giving the eager spectators a full opportunity to see her in flight.

She swung eastward again and passed over the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn before heading west again.

Streets Are Filled.

New York was abed or just getting up when the dirigible was first sighted, but news of her arrival and the paean of greeting that rose in a titan chorus from many whistles, brought late risers to the streets, which quickly were filled to rush hour proportions.

Windows of lofty office buildings, ordinarily not filled until their workday inhabitants arrived two hours later, were sought as vantage points from which the canyons of the city could not shut off a view of the air traveler.

North Turo, Mass., a little town on Cape Cod, near the North Highland Light, had the honor of being the first place on American soil to hail the big bird of passage.

Driving down the coast toward Boston and New York at a clip of better than 50 knots an hour from the northward position to which adverse winds had driven her late yesterday and last night, the ZR-3 passed over North Turo at 3:15 a. m. today.

Airplanes Escort Ship.

Boston was the next in line of flight and as the lights of the air crawler showed at 4:18 a. m., a city yet in darkness, joined the whistles at the Boston navy yard and from coastwise shipping in a greeting to her. A light at her prow and a light astern showed as the dirigible slid far above the city.

Dawn was breaking clear and mild as she passed Newport, R. I., 100 miles from New York, at 5:30 o'clock. She was holding to a good speed, around 60 miles an hour.

As the dirigible neared New York in the broadening light, four army airplanes swooped up from Mitchell Field, Long Island, as an escort to the big ship. Dwafted by the ponderous proportions of the ZR-3, they were but gnats humming around a Leviathan of the sky.

As American soil slipped under her keel, with the success of the trans-Atlantic dirigible voyage assured, messages of greeting buzzed from the ZR-3 to stations on the ground. They to their families and intimates and came from the American naval officers from the German commander and crew to anxious wives and children waiting in Germany.

Nine Hours To Shore Craft.

It will take nine hours to get the big airship shored up in its hangar at Lakehurst, according to experts. Lieutenant D. D. Watson, pilot of one of four planes sent out from Mitchell Field to greet the air cruiser, was first to sight the ZR-3 in the immediate vicinity of New York. She was then over Long Island Sound not far from the town of Huntington.

At that time she was at a height of 2,000 feet and making a speed which Lieutenant Watson estimated at 72 miles an hour.

The course laid from the Azores direct to Lakehurst, was changed because of southwestern winds which hindered the vessel's passage and the dirigible was carried far northward, first being sighted from Seal Island, 18 miles west of Cape Sable, Nova Scotia, a few minutes after midnight.

A request for weather reports from Boston and Cape Cod was received at the Radio Station at Bar Harbor, Maine, as the ZR-3 headed south. Clear weather was reported and winds were favorable.

Message From Dirigible.

Through the Radio Corporation of America, the ZR-3 message: "Passed steamer Robert Dollar at 9:20 p. m. She hoisted colors and number. Steamship President Harding radioed last night, tendering assistance. Thank you, captain, we don't need help yet. We have fuel left for about 56 hours, half of original supply."

"Rose to 8,000 feet height at 9:30 and blew safety valve until gas cells about 80 per cent full of hydrogen. This highest, took us above lower clouds."

"Glad to go up where it is cooler, so hot last night hardly slept. Temperature 72 out, 55 inside cabin. Back to 1,000 altitude at 10:30. This air ship steadiest ever seen."

Flood of Congratulations.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Such a flood of congratulatory messages filled the air as soon as the ZR-3 was over American soil that the radio operator aboard the dirigible, weary from long watches and busy with essential dispatches, was forced to say:

"Please hold messages congratulations. Must work with congressional and naval stations only."

Greetings From Builders.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Greetings from the German builders of the ZR-3 to the future owners of the big dirigible were transmitted to America via International News Service from Dr. Hugo Eckener, her commander, as the silver air cruiser thrust its huge bulk through the air lanes above New York today.

A tiny parachute wafted down from the air liner. Attached to the parachute was a bundle of letters addressed to International News Service and this signed greeting from Dr. Eckener:

"New York, we salute you."

"In sight of the skyline of this wonderful metropolis the ZR-3 dips its bow and sends sincere greetings to the people of America."

"We hope and trust our trans-Atlantic flight will be the forerunner of a fruitful epoch of cordial co-operation between our two nations, developing Count Zeppelin's immortal achievements in the conquest of the air by lighter than air craft."

"Through International News Service, the commander and crew of the ZR-3 wish to convey their best wishes to the people of New York and the United States."

(Signed) "DR. HUGO ECKENER."

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The flying time of the ZR-3 from its hangar in Friedrichshafen, Germany, to the coast of North America, was approximately 75 hours.

The dirigible hopped off at 6:36 a. m., at Friedrichshafen, which would be 12:36, Eastern Standard time, in the United States. It was 3:50 a. m. today when she soared over North Turo, a little town tucked away on Cape Cod.

The M. E. Church, delivered a final address to his former congregation on Tuesday night in the meeting in which the members welcomed his successor, Dr. Frank Fowler, formerly of Ashtabula. "Get into the Biederwolf revival" asserted Dr. Wood.

"Here lies a great opportunity for this church to function and do the work it was dedicated to do. After all the salvation of souls is the great desideratum of anybody banded together and called a church."

Other Pastors Speak

In kindred view Dr. Fowler responding to the words of welcome addressed him spoke as did Dr. F. A. Dean, president of the East Liverpool Ministerial Association, who voiced the felicitations of that body.

Dr. Biederwolf, having concluded his Cleveland engagement, has returned to Indiana for three days' rest before coming to East Liverpool.

Engineers on River Inspection Trip Stop at Dam No. 8

On a trip of inspection from Dam No. 3, near Coraopolis to Dam No. 11, near Brilliant, a party of Ohio river engineers stopped off Tuesday afternoon.

The party was headed by James B. Bevington, overseer of construction, and included Lock Masters Victor W. Phillips, Lock No. 11, Allegheny river; Thomas Jones, Lock No. 3, Ohio river; Carl Vollhardt, Lock No. 4, Ohio river; Robert H. Riggs, Lock No. 5, Ohio river; Fred H. McCullough, Lock No. 6, Ohio river; Elzie Ackerman, Lock No. 7, Ohio river; Joseph P. Green, Lock No. 8, and assistant superintendent of the lower district, including Dams 7 to 11; George W. De Rouin, Lock No. 9, Ohio river; John C. Peck, Lock No. 10, Ohio river and Harry W. Ridge, Lock No. 11, Ohio river.

The purpose of the trip, which is being made on the steamer T. P. Roberts, is to instruct the lockmasters in the handling of movable dams and to observe their work. All dams in the Ohio, with the movable, this is the third trip of this kind and finishes for the year the instruction of lockmasters on the three rivers.

The visitors spent 20 minutes at Dam No. 8 and then continued their way to Dam No. 9, near New Cumberland, Lock No. 11 at Brilliant, was visited Wednesday morning after which the party started on their return trip to Pittsburgh.

Auto Club Puts Traffic Regulations Here in Book Form

City traffic ordinances, in handy book form, will be available for East Liverpool motorists within the next two weeks, according to announcement Wednesday by Secretary Diehl, of the Auto club, in charge of the plan. The books will be free to all motorists, whether members of the club or not, it was pointed out by Mr. Diehl.

Got the Real Thing

"For five long years I suffered with stomach trouble and what the doctors called gall stone colic, and all said nothing but an operation would do me any good. A friend who had taken your medicine advised me to try it, and I found it to be the real thing. I feel better than I have in eight years and I am praising God for May's Wonderful Remedy." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded by Jesse D. Holloway and Druggists everywhere.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The stock market was lifted out of its stage of depression today by a moderate rally in oil stocks, in which practically all of the independent oil shares participated, and in the course of which prices from a fraction to 2 points over yesterday's low levels before the end of the first hour. The rally in oils was more vigorous than the one which was nipped in the bud by Tuesday's avalanche of selling, though oil stocks in that session showed their stability by refusing to join in the swift downward movement of prices.

Industrial stocks were pressed on the market immediately after the opening and though first prices were nearly a point higher for the higher priced active shares, declines were in order in stocks like American Can, Baldwin, General Electric, Cast Iron Pipe and others. It appeared that the heavy professional selling movement had not been completed.

Announcement by the Prairie Oil and Gas company, one of the largest purchasers of crude oil in the country, that it had finished procuring and would henceforth buy all the crude oil offered to it by producers, was considered one of the most constructive developments in the oil industry since the price cutting war began. Then came the weekly estimate of crude oil production by the Oil City Derrick, showing a falling off of 14,845 barrels last week, following the decline of 24,600 barrels in the week preceding. Traders in oil stocks who have been waiting for the "turn" in the steepest portion of the index were encouraged to buy their favorite stocks while shorts covered.

The advance in oil stock prices was the most pronounced that has been seen in the market for more than a month. Phillips Petroleum at 3 1/2 was up 2 points from yesterday's low; Marland at 2 3/4, up 2 points; Producers and Refiners at 2 1/2 up 2 1/2; Penn-American B at 2; Cosden up 1; Standard of California up 1 1/2.

Railroad and industrial stocks did not participate in the advance in prices, but selling pressure on them relaxed and prices remained at or near the level of the opening of the market. Industrial and financial reports were constructive, indicating good progress in industrial and business activity.

THE ERRING WIFE AND MOTHER is the woman who sacrifices her health and consequent happiness to her ambition. We all know such women—women who, for the sake of their ambition, shall be kept immaculately neat and attractive and their children well dressed they overdo and soon bring on some female ailment which is evidenced by nervousness, irritability, headaches, backache and other aches and pains attending such ills. Every woman should remember that the most successful remedy for such conditions is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which for fifty years has been restoring women to health strength and happiness.

WYOMING DEMS NAME WOMAN TO OUTDO TEXAS

Mrs. Nellie Ross, Governor's Widow, Party Nominee.

MOURNS HUSBAND

Declares Honor is Tribute to Departed Spouse.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 15.—"Best Texas to it" was the slogan of Wyoming Democrats today following the nomination late yesterday of Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, widow of the late Governor W. B. Ross, as the party's gubernatorial candidate.

Wyoming, pioneer woman's suffrage state, would also be the first to inaugurate a woman as governor, the delegates declared.

Mrs. Ross, a refined, capable woman, was prepared to "carry on" the duties of her husband, provided she said the people of Wyoming expressed that desire by their votes on November 4.

"While I believe as a general proposition that most public offices can be filled by women quite as satisfactorily as men," the widow told International News Service at the executive mansion here, "a public career for myself never previously had any appeal."

Honor Wholly Unsought.

"I appreciate far beyond my ability to express, the honor conferred upon me by unanimous vote of the delegates," she continued, "but I regard it as a tribute to my departed husband, giving further substantial evidence of the high esteem in which he was held by the people of this state."

The charming, though greatly grieved gubernatorial nominee, declared that the honor had come to her wholly unsought.

"My greatest desire and hope," she said, "is that with the support of true friends and divine aid I may measure up to what is expected of me."

"If elected I will strive to perform the duties of chief executive of the state with the same honesty of purpose and bearing the same high ideals that would have governed the action of William, (her husband) had his life been spared to carry out what he had planned."

Friends Do Campaigning.

In response to a question Mrs. Ross said she would be unable to actively participate in the campaign and that her political welfare rested in the hands of her friends and party workers. She had been assured, however, that back of her was a united party while many Republican and Independent voters throughout the state had already given promise of support.

Mrs. Ross was born in St. Joseph, Mo., about 40 years ago. She was married to William B. Ross in Omaha, Neb., in Sept. 1902. She has three sons, two attending the University of Wyoming and the other a public school student here.

While she has always been devoted to her domestic duties and her children, she was a constant "pal" of her late husband during his campaigning two years ago and has a wide acquaintance in political circles throughout the state.

The Republican state convention yesterday nominated E. J. Sullivan of Basin as candidate for governor. Both state conventions were called at the result of governor Ross' death last month.

Commander Eckener remained on board the ship while the crowd swarmed about it. To newspapermen, Eckener called out from the gondola of the ship:

"We are very proud and very happy. It was a wonderful trip."

Then he turned and busied himself with giving orders to his men within the ship.

Commander is Jubilant

Commander Eckener and the entire German crew of officers and men are jubilant. The Germans were spic and span in their light blue uniforms with white collars and blue and white caps.

The Germans remained in their ship as the marines, hauling on ropes that had been tossed out from the ship, proceeded to "walk" the ZR-3 toward its hangar where it was to be carefully cradled.

The Americans, however, leaped out and rushed to loved ones in the crowd that was swarming excitedly back and forth on the field. As Captain George W. Steele, Jr., future commander of the ZR-3, jumped from the dirigible, a little white haired woman ran to him. Mrs. Steele his mother, beat Mrs. Steele, his wife, by a step into his arms. Photographers clicked their cameras madly as the officer kissed his mother and wife in turn.

"Kiss your wife, again," a tardy camera man requested.

"She won't let me," the captain smiled.

"I will so," exclaimed Mrs. Steele. And Steele did.

One Army Officer Aboard

Major R. M. Kennedy, only army officer on board the air monstrosity, insisted he was the happiest of all the Americans to see his native land again.

"Why shouldn't I be the happiest man?" He declared. "I've been abroad for two years. I haven't had a square meal in that time."

The dirigible was finally tucked away fast in the hangar at 10:40 a. m.

A touch of aeronautical courtesy was given the arrival when Commander Eckener dipped the big dirigible's nose three times in greeting to the crowd just before the descent.

BY LARRY SMITS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Safe over her new homeland after a record voyage across the Atlantic and a struggle with adverse winds which buffeted her far northward, the big dirigible ZR-3 cruised over New York early today while the city rubbed the sleep from its eyes and joined in a cheer that must have carried up to the gondolas of the huge airplane.

Passing Boston at 4:18 a. m., the dirigible headed southward along the coast, left Newport, R. I., behind at dawn and thence along the shores of Long Island, across the lower harbor and thence up the Hudson river, while the city shrieked its greeting.

The dirigible passed the ferry house at St. George, Staten Island, at 7:45 a. m., and headed toward the statue of Liberty. She was flying low through a heavy haze. In the haze thickened early morning light, she gleamed dully as she slid through the fog up the Hudson river.

As the big silver ship reached the end of Manhattan Island over the Hudson, she swung gracefully and pointed her nose down toward the battery again, following Broadway as she bisected the cheering city in her course.

Waves of Welcoming Sound

Shouldering her way through the morning mists at a brisk speed, the late Zeppelin which Germany came to make under the terms of the Versailles treaty moved over a cheering city in a swing of triumph before heading toward Lakehurst, N. J. There the German experts, who built it here and brought her safely over miles of Ocean, will turn her over to the United States navy.

Wave after wave of welcoming sound rose in a crescendo of enthusiasm as the dirigible, robbed of her silver sheen by the low hanging haze, sped the length of the city toward the Canyons of Wall Street. At the battery she again turned west, swung in a great circle around lower New York and again west, toward Lakehurst.

Instead of making directly for the field, where she will be moored, the ZR-3 played around in the air lanes above New York, evidently bent on giving the eager spectators a full opportunity to see her in flight.

She swung eastward again and passed over the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn before heading west again.

Streets are Filled.

New York was abed or just getting up when the dirigible was first sighted, but news of her arrival and the prospect of greeting that rose in a titan chorus from many whistles, brought late risers to the streets, which quickly were filled to rush hour proportions.

Windows of lofty office buildings, ordinarily not filled until their workday inhabitants arrived two hours later, were sought as vantage points from which the canyons of the city could not shut off a view of the air traveler.

North Turo, Mass., a little town on Cape Cod, near the North Highland Light, had the honor of being the first place on American soil to hail the big bird of passage.

Driving down the coast toward Boston and New York at a clip of better than 50 knots an hour from the northward position to which adverse winds had driven her late yesterday and last night, the ZR-3 passed over North Turo at 3:15 a. m. today.

Airplanes Escort Ship.

Boston was the next in line of flight and as the lights of the air cruiser showed at 4:18 a. m., a city yet in darkness, joined the whistles at the Boston navy yard and from coastwise shipping in a greeting to her. A light at her prow and a light astern showed as the dirigible slid far above the city. Dawn was breaking clear and mild as she passed Newport, R. I., 100 miles from New York, at 5:30 o'clock. She was holding to a good speed, around 60 miles an hour.

As the dirigible neared New York in the broadening light, four army airplanes swooped up from Mitchell Field, Long Island, as an escort to the big ship. Dwafted by the ponderous proportions of the ZR-3, they were but gnats humming around a Leviathan of the sky.

As American soil slipped under her keel, with the success of the trans-Atlantic dirigible voyage assured, messages of greeting buzzed from the ZR-3 to stations on the ground. They to their families and intimates and came from the American naval officers and crew to anxious wives and children waiting in Germany.

Nine Hours to Shore Craft

It will take nine hours to get the big airship shored up in its hangar at Lakehurst, according to experts.

Lieutenant A. D. Watson, pilot of one of four planes sent out from Mitchell Field to greet the air cruiser, was first to sight the ZR-3 in the immediate vicinity of New York. She was then over Long Island sound not far from the town of Huntington.

At that time she was at a height of 2,000 feet and making a speed which Lieutenant Watson estimated at 72 miles an hour.

The course laid from the Azores direct to Lakehurst, was changed because of southwestern winds which hindered the vessel's passage and the dirigible was carried far northward, first being sighted from American waters when she passed over Seal Island Lightship, 18 miles west of Cape Sable, Nova Scotia, a few minutes after midnight.

A request for weather reports from Boston and Cape Cod was received at the Radio Station at Bar Harbor, Maine, as the ZR-3 headed south. Clear weather was reported and winds were favorable.

Message From Dirigible.

Through the Radio Corporation of America, the ZR-3 message: "Past mid-steamer Robert Dollar at 9:20 p. m. He belated colors and number. Steamship President Harding radioed last night, tendering assistance. Thank you, captain, we don't need help yet. We have fuel left for about 56 hours, half of original supply."

"Rose to 8,000 feet height at 9:30 and blew safety valve, until gas cells about 90 per cent full of hydrogen. The highest, took us above lower clouds."

"Glad to go up where it is cooler, so hot last night hardly slept. Temperature 72 out, 85 inside cabin. Back to 1,000 altitude at 10:30. This air ship steadiest ever seen."

Flood of Congratulations.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Such a flood of congratulatory messages filled the air as soon as the ZR-3 was over American soil that the radio operator aboard the dirigible, weary from long watches and busy with essential dispatches, was forced to say:

"Please hold messages congratulations. Must work with commercial and naval stations only."

Greetings From Builders.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Greetings from the German builders of the ZR-3 to the future owners of the big dirigible were transmitted to America via International News Service from Dr. Hugo Eckener, her commander, as the silver air cruiser thrust its huge bulk through the air lanes above New York today.

A tiny parachute wafted down from the air liner. Attached to the parachute was a bundle of letters addressed to International News Service and this signed greeting from Dr. Eckener:

"New York, we salute you. In sight of the skyline of this wonderful metropolis the ZR-3 dips its bow and sends sincere greetings to the people of America."

"We hope and trust our trans-Atlantic flight will be the forerunner of a fruitful epoch of cordial co-operation between our two nations, developing Count Zeppelin's immortal achievements, in the conquest of the air by lighter than air craft."

"Thus we will work hand in hand at the task of bridging time and distance, bringing all nations of the earth closer together."

"Through International News Service, the commander and crew of the ZR-3 wish to convey their best wishes to the people of New York and the United States."

(Signed) "DR. HUGO ECKENER."

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The flying time of the ZR-3 from its hangar in Friedrichshafen, Germany, to the coast of North America, was approximately 75 hours.

The dirigible hopped off at 6:36 a. m. at Friedrichshafen, which would be 12:36, Eastern Standard time, in the United States. It was 3:50 a. m. today when she soared over North Turo, a little town tucked away on Cape Cod.

The M. E. Church, delivered a final address to his former congregation on Tuesday night in the meeting in which the members welcomed his successor, Dr. Frank Fowler, formerly of Ashtabula. "Get into the Biederwolf revival" asserted Dr. Wood.

"Here lies a great opportunity for this church to function and do the work it was dedicated to do. After all the salvation of souls is the great desideratum of anybody banded together and called a church."

Other Pastors Speak

In kindred view Dr. Fowler responding to the words of welcome accorded him spoke as did Dr. F. A. Dean, president of the East Liverpool Ministerial Association, who voiced the felicitations of that body.

Dr. Biederwolf, having concluded his Cleveland engagement, has returned to Indiana for three days' rest before coming to East Liverpool.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The stock market was lifted out of its stage of depression today by a moderate rally in oil stocks, in which practically all of the independent oil shares participated, and in the course of which prices from a fraction to 2 points over yesterday's low levels before the end of the first hour. The rally in oils was more vigorous than the one which was nipped in the bud by Tuesday's avalanche of selling, though oil stocks in that session showed their stability by refusing to join in the swift downward movement of prices.

Industrial stocks were pressed on the market immediately after the opening and though first prices were nearly a point higher for the higher priced active shares, declines were in order in stocks like American Can, Baldwin, General Electric, Cast Iron Pipe and others. It appeared that the heavy professional selling movement had not been completed.

Announcement by the Prairie Oil and Gas company, one of the largest purchasers of crude oil in the country, that it had finished pre-rating and would henceforth buy all the crude oil offered to it by producers, was considered one of the most constructive developments in the oil industry since the price cutting war began. Then came the weekly estimate of crude oil production by the Oil City Derrick, showing a falling off of 18,445 barrels last week, following the decline of 24,000 barrels in the week preceding. Traders in oil stocks who have been waiting for the "turn" in the statistical condition of the industry were encouraged to buy their favorite stocks on the shorts covered.

The advance in oil stock prices was the most pronounced that has been seen in the market for more than a month. Phillips Petroleum at 3 1/2 was up 2 points from yesterday's low; Marland at 2 1/2 up 2 points; Producers and Refiners at 2 1/2 up 2 1/2; Penn American at 2 1/2; Coston up 1; Standard of California up 1 1/2.

Railroad and industrial stocks did not participate in the advance in prices, but selling pressure on them relaxed and prices remained at or near the level of the opening of the market. Industrial and financial reports were constructive, indicating good progress in industrial and business activity.

THIEVES RIFLE EMPIRE HOME.

Ohio Valley police Wednesday continued their search for unidentified bandits who, Sunday night, entered the home of Raymond Hall, of Empire, and got away with $1,000 in cash and jewelry and other loot valued at approximately the same figure.

The robbery is said to have taken place between 7 and 9 o'clock, when members of the family were absent from the home. The thieves, it is said, went directly to a bedroom and, opening a trunk, took a small cash box containing about $1,000 in gold certificates, gold coins and silver dollars. Three diamond rings, a small watch, several Pennsylvania railroad bonds and the family's life insurance policies were also taken, bringing the total loss to nearly $2,000.

That someone familiar with the Hall home was implicated in the robbery is the opinion of the victims. Other valuables, it is said, which were in the same room, among them being a small pocketbook containing about $50, were untouched. It is believed that the robbers knew of the trunk and its contents.

SINGERS FIRST ON LYCEUM CARD

Mary Adel Hays Co., Here Wednesday Night.

The Mary Adel Hays Co., of singers, consisting of four vocalists and an accompanist, will appear Wednesday night in the high school auditorium in the first number on the high school's 1924-25 lyceum course. Judging by the advance sale of tickets, high school authorities declare that a capacity house will undoubtedly greet the opening number.

The members of the company include Mary Adel Hays, coloratura soprano; Mildred Haley, contralto; Louise Kennings, tenor and violinist; Arthur Langhamer, baritone; Grace Martin, pianist and accompanist.

The company will present a miscellaneous program of familiar costumed excerpts from both light and grand opera, as well as many ballad and concert classics.

Miss Hays has done extensive concert work in New York City, and has answered repeated calls for western tours. Her organization is of high class in every particular, each member of her company having won distinction in various fields of musical attainment.

In the ensemble work the excellent voices chosen by Miss Hays give an undeniably artistic effect, with the remarkable blending, precision of attack and delightful shading. Their opera numbers have been coached by a leading New York impresario, special attention being given to histrionic action and dramatic interpretation. Costumed scenes from the following favorite operas are included in the repertoire: "Madame Butterfly," "I Pagliacci," "The Daughter of the Regiment," "Martha," "Il Trovatore," "Rigoletto," etc., as well as popular novelties from light opera and the latest successes in songs and familiar ballads.

YOUR HEALTH

What Research Proves About Causes of Asthma

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City
United States Senator from New York.

ASTHMA is a strange disease. It has been so difficult to handle that hundreds of "asthma cures" have been placed on the market. The medical profession was baffled for years. In the meantime the poor sufferers continued to endure the agonies of the disease.

During the past few years we have learned that some persons have a remarkable sensitivity to certain substances. It is now believed that asthma is produced by the inhalation of one of many such substances.

In New York City a clinic has been opened to care for this one and only disease. It seems odd to have such an institution, because it was not so long ago that the doctors were discouraged and had little hope to give the asthma patient.

The medical profession has come to understand that every asthma patient must be studied as an individual. What will help one is useless for another.

In studying the means of relief the first thing is to find the exciting cause. What do you suppose are some of the causes?

Well, rabbit's hair is one. Immediately you will say: "How in the world could I come in contact with rabbit hair? I haven't seen a rabbit for forty years!"

The hair of Australian rabbits is a common filling for pillows. Likewise rabbit fur is dyed and used in making neckties.

It is not uncommon to find a person who is never free from asthma in one house and never has it when he visits the home of a relative. This might be accounted for by the presence and use of rabbit-hair pillows in one house and feather pillows in the other.

I read of one victim who was found to be sensitive to the dust of her own home. There was something in it which appeared to excite the attacks of asthma. This might be because of the admixture with the dust of particles of wool or other substance from one particular rug.

Mice and horses have hair, too, that may be productive of asthma spasms in some persons.

Certain foods contain proteins which are poisonous to the susceptible. By careful testing the offending food is found.

Hay fever is like asthma, but it appears to be caused by the pollen of certain plants and grasses. Goldenrod, ragweed, timothy hay, ragweed and other plants are bearers of pollen, which being on the attacks.

Answers to Health Questions

MISS L. F. S. Q.—Does mixed with lemon juice cause hair to grow on the face?
A.—What do you advise for sunburn?

A.—Since I am not familiar with the preparation you mention I cannot advise you as to its effects.
2.—Carron oil, cocoa butter and cold cream are all effective for sunburn.

E. J. B. Q.—I am a young man nineteen years of age, height, five feet and one-half inch. What is my correct weight?

A.—The average weight of a young man of your age and height is about 131 pounds.

R. F. C. Q.—Will you kindly tell me whether grapefruit juice as a beverage is beneficial?

PLAN REST ROOM TEA THURSDAY

The necessity and uses of the community rest rooms, established last July on the second floor of the city hall, Fifth and Main streets, in the former chamber of commerce rooms, will be explained by members of the Wellsville Twentieth Century club, the sponsors of the project, at a "silver tea" entertainment and reception which will be held in the rest rooms on Thursday afternoon and evening. Members of the Twentieth Century club will be hostesses to citizens of the city, to whom an urgent invitation has been extended to attend the reception, inspect the rest room and hear its purposes and uses explained. The tea will be from 2 until 6 in the afternoon, and from 8 to 10 in the evening.

An informal program will be held during the reception hours, with music, recitations, songs and other entertainment features being scheduled at intervals. The rooms have been decorated for the occasion.

The primary objects of the sponsors is to promote interest in the rest room with a resultant subscription of funds with which to keep it in operation. A number of local business houses and lodges and civic organizations, as well as individuals, have already contributed.

Mrs. George Mendel, of this city, is the rest room attendant.

Hold Monthly Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Home Missionary society of the First Methodist Protestant church, was held on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. E. L. Weekly, in Commerce street. The customary program was carried out.

15 FEVER CASES REPORTED HERE

State Health Department to Investigate Water.

Fifteen cases of typhoid fever have been reported from Wellsville to Dr. T. T. Church, county health commissioner, and investigation by Dr. T. W. Manoney of the state department of health and county sanitary officer. Examinations show that the germ was taken from a drilled well at Fifth and Commerce street, Wellsville.

One case has been reported just outside of the Wellsville corporate limits in Yellow Creek township, where the parents of the child admitted that the tot had drunk water from this well.

Dr. King, of Wellsville, has reported the 15 cases, while Health Officer Tarr of Wellsville has reported the lone case outside of the city.

Dr. F. H. Waring, of the state department of health of Columbus was to arrive in Wellsville Tuesday to make an investigation of the water system of Wellsville.

THIEVES RIFLE EMPIRE HOME.

Ohio Valley police Wednesday continued their search for unidentified bandits who, Sunday night, entered the home of Raymond Hall, of Empire, and got away with $1,000 in cash and jewelry and other loot valued at approximately the same figure.

The robbery is said to have taken place between 7 and 9 o'clock, when members of the family were absent from the home. The thieves, it is said, went directly to a bedroom and, opening a trunk, took a small cash box containing about $1,000 in gold certificates, gold coins and silver dollars. Three diamond rings, a small watch, several Pennsylvania railroad bonds and the family's life insurance policies were also taken, bringing the total loss to nearly $2,000.

That someone familiar with the Hall home was implicated in the robbery is the opinion of the victims. Other valuables, it is said, which were in the same room, among them being a small pocketbook containing about $60, were untouched. It is believed that the robbers knew of the trunk and its contents.

SINGERS FIRST ON LYCEUM CARD

Mary Adel Hays Co., Here Wednesday Night.

The Mary Adel Hays Co., of singers, consisting of four vocalists and an accompanist, will appear Wednesday night in the high school auditorium in the first number on the high school's 1924-25 lyceum course. Judging by the advance sale of tickets, high school authorities declare that a capacity house will undoubtedly greet the opening number.

The members of the company include Mary Adel Hays, coloratura soprano; Mildred Haley, contralto; Louise Kennings, tenor and violinist; Arthur Langhamer, baritone; Grace Martin, pianist and accompanist.

The company will present a miscellaneous program of familiar costumed excerpts from both light and grand opera, as well as many ballad and concert classics.

Miss Hays has done extensive concert work in New York City, and has answered repeated calls for western tours. Her organization is of high class in every particular, each member of her company having won distinction in various fields of musical attainment.

In the ensemble work the excellent voices chosen by Miss Hays give an undeniably artistic effect, with the remarkable blending, precision of attack and delightful shading. Their opera numbers have been coached by a leading New York Impresario, special attention being given to histrionic action and dramatic interpretation. Costumed scenes from the following favorite operas are included in the repertoire: "Madame Butterfly," "Pagliacci," "The Daughter of the Regiment," "Martha," "Il Trovatore," "Rigoletto," etc., as well as popular novelties from light operas and the latest successes in songs and familiar ballads.

YOUR HEALTH

What Research Proves About Causes of Asthma

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City
United States Senator from New York.

ASTHMA is a strange disease. It has been so difficult to handle that hundreds of "asthma cures" have been placed on the market. The medical profession was baffled for years. In the meantime the poor sufferers continued to endure the agonies of the disease.

During the past few years we have learned that some persons have a remarkable sensitivity to certain substances. It is now believed that asthma is produced by the inhalation of one of many such substances.

In New York City a clinic has been opened to care for this one and only disease. It seems odd to have such an institution, because it was not so long ago that the doctors were discouraged and had little hope to give the asthmatic patient.

The medical profession has come to understand that every asthmatic patient must be studied as an individual. What will help one is useless for another.

In studying the means of relief the first thing is to find the exciting cause. What do you suppose are some of the causes?

Well, rabbit's hair is one. Immediately you will say: "How in the world could I come in contact with rabbit hair?" I haven't seen a rabbit for forty years.

The hair of Australian rabbits is a common filling for pillows. Likewise rabbit fur is dyed and used in making neckties.

It is not uncommon to find a person who is never free from asthma in one house and never has it when he visits the home of a relative. This might be accounted for by the presence and use of rabbit-hair pillows in one house and feather pillows in the other.

I read of one victim who was found to be sensitive to the dust of her own home. There was something in it which appeared to excite the attacks of asthma. This might be because of the admixture with the dust of particles of wool or other substance from one particular rug.

Mice and horses have hair, too, that may be productive of asthma spasms in some persons. Certain foods contain proteins which are poisonous to the susceptible. By careful testing the offending food is found.

Hay fever is like asthma, but it appears to be caused by the pollen of certain plants and grasses. Golden rod, roses, timothy hay, rag weed and other plants are bearers of pollen, which being on the attacks.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1924.

Last Two Days of Registration

Voters who have neglected to register, have two more opportunities to qualify for the presidential, state, district and county election to be held on Tuesday, November 4.

Friday and Saturday are the last of the four days of quadrennial registration in East Liverpool, the only registration city in Columbiana county.

Men and women who failed to enroll on October 2 or 9, must sign the precinct registrar's books this week if they desire to safeguard their right of franchise.

Failure to do so deprives them of a voice in the selection of governmental officers next month.

From 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. and 5 to 10 p. m. on Friday and Saturday, registrars shall be on duty in the 21 precincts of the city, prepared to enroll electors and issue transfers to voters who have changed their place of residence since the first enrollment day.

Less than one-half of East Liverpool's voters have enrolled. Consequently, it is a foregone conclusion that congestion is inevitable unless an effort is made by the women to qualify during the morning and early afternoon hours. The noon hour and from 5 to 10 p. m. are expected to be rush periods.

Remember everybody must register!

Unmended Roads

In a county where the main highways are going to pieces for lack of teamwork between the county and the incorporated villages and towns, a highway engineer makes this impressive statement:

"An expenditure of $50 a year will keep a mile of new pavement from deterioration. Neglect the road for a few years, and it will cost $5,000 to patch it."

These figures need not be taken too literally nor the contrast stretched too far. It is not likely that the $5,000 required to patch up a mile of long-neglected pavement would preserve a new pavement in its original perfection for 100 years. Yet there is more truth than fancy in the figures, and they drive home a needed lesson.

England has long been famous for its roads. Until the advent of the automobile, it maintained its macadam roads in perfect condition by keeping a road-mender and a stone pile along every main road at regular intervals of a mile or two, and it now maintains more solid pavements by the same policy. Americans are spending billions a year on new paving, and also losing billions a year because, when the paving is once laid, they usually neglect it for several years.

Royal Old Clothes

Now that the Prince of Wales has come and gone, some things about him are coming to light which were overlooked or covered up while that agreeable young man was disporting himself with the smart set on Long Island. One was that, contrary to expectation, and to the horror of the Long Island fashionables, he frequently wore old clothes.

"That," remarks a New York correspondent, with marked approval, "is a commonplace for an Englishman, of course, who believes that a good suit is a good suit, even if it hasn't got two buttons just where the newest suits are buttoned."

On the other hand, one of the "style scouts" set to watch the prince and pick up valuable hints of the very latest and niftiest thing in clothes, growls: "He's all right as a man. But as a leader of fashion he's a wash-out. I've quit."

Women may say what they will—and despite their liking for H. R. H., they may say a good deal—but men generally will hold with the approving correspondent. The prince wore two suits more than any others, both obviously past their best days, one blue and the other gray. He wore them because he liked them, because they were comfortable, because he had got used to them and they had come to have a pleasant, friendly feel. He knew himself when he wore them. He felt at home in them. Any man can understand that. But no woman can.

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 17.—The department of agriculture is essentially the farmers' branch of the federal government, for much of its work in years past has been devoted to finding new and better methods of producing crops, to developing improved plants and livestock, to working out measures for protecting crops from diseases and pests, and to similar problems. But today greater effort is being directed to the business side of farming. This does not mean that production problems are being neglected, but that the department's work does not cease when the farmer's crop is raised. There are problems of marketing, distribution, crop estimating, transportation, production costs, domestic demand, foreign demand and competition, which must receive attention.

The department had its origin in the farsighted wisdom of George Washington, who, in 1793, wanted congress to do something about establishing a department to promote agriculture. Congress never actually got to the point of establishing a department of agriculture until 1862, although in an organized way the work dates back practically to the beginning of the government. In that early day most of the work fell upon the shoulders of a single individual, the commissioner. In a general way its present magnitude can be indicated by the mere statement that nearly 20,000 people are employed.

Specialists of the bureau of plant industry investigate the causes of plant diseases and find methods by which they may be controlled or eradicated. For instance, there are the investigations which have resulted in almost the complete eradication of the destructive citrus canker disease in the gulf states, where an investment of $400,000,000 was menaced. Then there is the development of practical methods of controlling the white pine blister rust, thus preserving a $200,000,000 asset; and the vigorous co-operative campaign to eradicate the barley bush which spreads black stem rust of wheat. In some years this disease has taken a toll of 200,000,000 bushels from the wheat crop.

KILLING BUGS SAVES MONEY

Millions of dollars have been saved the farmers in the campaigns to eradicate or control plant pests. A large number of major plant insects have come into this country from abroad and they do untold damage each year. Among these could be mentioned the gypsy moth, European corn borer, the boll weevil and the Japanese beetle. The plant quarantine laws now make it possible to see that these undesirable are kept out, and not a single major pest has been brought in since the passage of the laws.

The bureau of animal industry performs veterinary and experimental work for the improvement of the country's livestock industry, including dairying and poultry raising, enforces the laws passed by congress to control and eradicate animal diseases and parasites, and maintains quarantine stations where animals from foreign countries are inspected to prevent the introduction of diseases and livestock pests. As you buy meat from the butcher shop perhaps you have noticed the little purple stamp upon it. This is a government stamp and is your guarantee that the meat is wholesome and fit for human consumption.

The bureau of chemistry has as one of its chief duties the enforcement of the pure-food law, the object of which is to see that foods and drugs are free from adulteration and misbranding. At a banquet in Ohio several people were made violently ill from eating canned food in which a toxin had developed, and four or five died. Through the co-operative efforts of federal, state and city food officials and the trade, every one of the brand involved that could be found on the market anywhere in the United States was removed from the channels of commerce, although it was probable the toxin had developed in but a few cans. The work of the chemist covers a wide range of useful discoveries, from more efficient methods for making cane syrup to treatments to make harness and shoe leather wear longer.

FARM ACCOUNTS BALANCED

The bureau of agricultural economics is a combination of all offices and divisions concerned with everything that affects farmers' incomes and profits. It studies the kind and amount of crops and livestock to raise, how to keep cost accounts, how properly to prepare products for market, where and when to market, and market prices and demand. The data on crop production are gathered by hundreds of agents in all of the great markets, and by thousands of individual farmers and are wired and mailed to Washington where they are immediately compiled. The resulting information, of extreme value to farmers in making their future plans and following the trend of the market, is broadcast without delay through the press, radio, wire and numerous publications.

The forest service administers our national forests, consisting of over 150,000,000 acres. It is the scientific farmer in charge of our valuable crop of timber. It protects the timber from fire and other damage and supervises the work to see that timberland is reforested. Existing laws provide for state co-operation in the protection of their forests and 25 of the 39 forest states now share these benefits.

The bureau of public roads has charge of the government's share in the construction of roads which the government helps the states build by paying about one-half of the cost. These roads are constructed under the combined direction of this bureau and the state highway departments.

The bureau of entomology studies insects and finds new remedies to eliminate the great damage which they do to growing crops and to domestic animals. The principal insect pests with which the experts are working in the hope of finding effective remedies are the cotton boll weevil in the south, the gypsy moth and the brown-tail moth in the northwest, the European corn borer and the Japanese beetle which damages grapevines and fruit trees.

BEWARE OF THE "PILL DOCTOR"

A special board within the department sees that fraudulent insecticides and fungicides are not sold. One "pill doctor" had a capsule which he said would cure fruit trees of insects and diseases if placed under the bark of the tree. It was found that trees so treated produced abundant foliage and an apparent crop of fruit, but the government found that these trees were merely making a last fight against the poison of the capsules. It was several years before the manufacturer of this "cure" was convicted. Another manufacturer had a nest egg made of naphthalene which was reputed to kill lice and mites and at the same time act as a nest egg. Such a discovery, the department thought, would be worth much to poultry raisers if successful. It was found, however, that the "egg" had no effect on lice and mites. The annual loss to agriculture from rodents has been estimated to exceed $500,000,000. This has been reduced materially through the campaigns led by the bureau of biological survey, and most of the rodents on a million acres of public and private lands have been destroyed.

Specialists of the survey study the habits and distribution of native and imported wild life in order to assist in preserving the useful and harmless species. From field and laboratory investigations, scientists of this bureau have been able to demonstrate that most species of native birds are of inestimable value to agriculture as destroyers of injurious insects. Of the 1,200 or more species of birds native to the United States and Canada less than 1 per cent are really injurious.

The bureau of soils has discovered the importance of knowing about soil conditions of other parts of the world, and their resemblance to soils in different states in this country. It was learned that almost every state resembled some area or country in Europe. For example, the Kentucky blue grass, that we think of as typically American, grows on limestone soil much like that of northern France. The soils of Old Bohemia are almost identical with

The Little Scorpions Club.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By ALICE LANCELIER.

PARIS, Oct. 15.—Paris soon will have to create a museum for the relics that are placed daily upon the Unknown Soldier's tomb under the Arch of Triumph. Flowers are removed when faded, but marble slabs, stelas and bronze palms are lasting, and, what is more, many are the gifts of famous personages and worthy of being preserved. These offerings now number 400 and are piled up in the little room of the Arch of Triumph, where the body of the Unknown Soldier was placed, awaiting the completion of the tomb. A few have been taken to the Chapel of St. Louis, in the Invalides, where visitors may see the stela offered by the king of Egypt, two elephant tusks given by the heir to the throne of Abyssinia, and the Crown of Thorns presented by the Armenian public.

A "Grass Widow Society" has sprung up in Prague, a novel organization which aims to unite all the divorced women of Czechoslovakia. There are said to be 27,000 of them in this country. They feel they need protection. A lawyer will be employed to help women seeking divorces, and a monthly divorce magazine will be published. Men will be allowed to join the society—only the good ones, though.

"Who'll buy my chestnuts at one sou apiece?"

This is what the swarthy chestnut roasters are now demanding. Winter has made its appearance, and, with it, the picturesque Auvergnats from the south and the Spaniards from the Basque country. The trees of Auvergne, they say, are ravaged by a curious disease, which broke out 40 years ago among the Basque chestnut forests and has spread through France, Italy and Spain with such rapidity that the nut crop threatens to disappear. The Japanese variety of chestnut trees which will replace them will bear larger nuts, but much dearer ones. A sou apiece is a fabulous price for Frenchmen who remember when a big sack, large enough to warm the hands with, could be had for three or four pennies.

Gypsy music will again be heard in the gay city of Budapest. After October 1 the cafes will be allowed to keep open all night, if they like, as in the pre-war times. Severe restrictions of recent years have caused some of the larger ones to close forever, and other business establishments have taken their places. The new ruling will mean a saver capital and increased employment for many musicians.

A swarm of bees got into trouble with a pastry-maker in the Rue des Gobelins. His shop has been persistently invaded by the bees, which eat his dainties and leave without paying. Finally the proprietor discovered that they came from the gardens of the Gobelins tapestry manufactory, which belongs to the state. The bees have brought about a lawsuit, and somebody will have to pay the damage.

Interesting archaeological discoveries have been made in the course of excavation work being carried out in Paris, in preparation for the laying of new tramway lines and the piercing of new tunnels. While constructing a new sewer in the Rue Neuve Saint Pierre, workmen unearthed a number of human bones, five sarcophagi and numerous pieces of very old pottery. Work at a private house in the Rue de Valenciennes brought to light a leaden coffin containing the skeleton of a young man who lived in the convent once on this spot. A Jewish cemetery of the thirteenth century was revealed at the corner of the famous "Boul Miché" and the Boulevard St. Germain. It was very likely abandoned in 1306, when Philip IV exiled the Jews. The Carnavalet museum is all the richer for a Hebrew funeral column, which was found in a perfect state of preservation.

A suggestion for "wet" countries comes from Constantinople, where drinking is tolerated in certain streets and strictly prohibited in others. There are "wet" streets and "dry" ones, and the government, which seems to think of everything, has placed the former very near the police stations.

those of southeast Pennsylvania. One reason for the unusual success of the thrifty Pennsylvania farmer may be due to the fact that the soils of southeastern Pennsylvania are almost identical with those of southern Germany. Even the famous soil of Ireland is duplicated along the coast of Washington and Oregon.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Swift are the changes of the Luminous Lane. Up Broadway from Forty-Seventh street, where the Palais Royal is dark, shuttered and padlocked, a row of miniature Rue de Rivoli shops have bloomed like mushrooms over night.

They are all-night places and not one is more than four feet wide or five foot deep. But they glitter and sparkle with the dazzle that begins when the theaters open. The rentals are in excess of $10,000 a year and how they exist is a mystery.

There is a fudge shop with a background of silver curtains. Also a Cinderella boot shop with tiny oval windows. A Paris perfume shop with a fountain arrangement at the door spraying the delicate odor of a special blend that passersby cannot escape.

In the brilliantly lighted window are perfume sprays, lip sticks, vanity boxes, rouge and adjustable eyelashes. A tall queenly woman with silver hair presides. She has a distinct Parisian accent and seems aloof to trade.

Next door the Maison Rose hat shop where chorus girls often lead hesitant admirers adroitly after the play. Then a sparkling nut and bon bon parlor. The Band Box hat shop displaying only the cloche hat in startling and vivid colors.

A beauty parlor with a window filled with testimonials from near stars and vaudeville artists. Right next door the Peter Pan boy bob parlor flooded by indirect lights and in charge of a comic supplement Frenchman with waxed mustache and coat washpail at the waist.

Just around the corner on the Seventh avenue side, a miniature of London's Cheshire cheese, where only Welsh rarebit and a near beer are served, struggles for existence. It has just five small tables, but has held on for several months.

Broadway also has many new electric signs. One three flight up tailoring establishment heralds in letters five feet high: "I'm here to stay!" The wriggly kids on top of the Putnam building have been removed. The building is to come down, but in the interim a sign just as big has been erected. This time the figures are Eskimos running through the snows and they are ballyhooing a brand of table water. Across the street below the Palace theater a razor sign displays five huge clocks set in a circle. Strangers may instantly learn the exact time in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, London and Yokohama by gazing at them.

Another innovation for Broadway is known as "Service Station for Men and Women." It is down in the basement a few steps below the old Claridge. A three-piece orchestra discourses and the place remains open all day and all night. There are telephone booths and lockers that may be rented by the month or year. There are pay wash rooms and self shaving booths. Laundry may be left and received there. A feature typical of Broadway is the "message exchange." For a dollar a month the high roller may receive his clandestine mail. Messenger service and parcel service are also provided. Other features are: parcel checking station, a haberdashery with a room for changing the shirt, collar, socks or underwear. Men and women may have their shoes shined and repaired while waiting. A theatrical ticket agency is still another feature. The slogan of the service station is "A Home Miles From Home."

On my way home, however, I found the real bright spot of the evening. Blind George in his newspaper hutch at the Bryant Park corner has a radio attachment and was seated in his chair listening to speeches and band concerts in all parts of the country.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

WE DO JUST WHAT WE WANT TO DO

One of our readers some time ago wrote as follows:

"You praise a mother's devotion to her children, how she runs into the fire to get them out, and will give them things to eat, starving herself. But isn't it a fact that a mother does that because she wants to do it? Doesn't she do it because she would rather do that than anything else, and, if that is so, is there any special reason for praising her? Isn't it a fact that we all do what we want to do? If it is, what is the use of blaming or praising one more than another? One man gets drunk because he wants to get drunk, others teach Sunday school because they want to teach Sunday school. What right have we to praise him or blame him, if he cannot control his wants?"

There is enough deceptive truth in our friend's letter to make it worth answering. It is true that we all do "what we want to do." We must want to do the thing in order to do it, for our will controls us. We can only do that which we will to do.

It is not, however, a fact that a man cannot help wanting one thing more than another. It is not a fact that the man who gets drunk because he wants to is no more and no less praiseworthy than the man that denies himself for his family of children because he wants to.

Each wants to do that which he does and at the moment, perhaps, neither could help acting as he does. But the man who wants that which is right is a very much better man than he who wants that which is wrong. And it is not a fact that a man is unable to control his wants. It is not a fact that he must act like a machine, obeying blindly inclinations beyond his control.

LET US TRY TO BE WISE

The task that every man should put before himself is to direct his inclinations in the best possible channel. Every man and woman, and every child out of babyhood, should struggle to develop within the mind the highest possible moral tendencies. Every one of us can make himself better if he will study his inclinations and try to root out those that lead to evil.

It is true that the mother who risks her life for her child, or the soldier who sacrifices his life for his country for his beliefs, does that which he wants to do. But it is not true that the mother or the man of brave convictions is only the equal of the individual controlled by selfish desires.

If motherly love has become universal, it is because mothers for hundreds of centuries have kept their thoughts upon the welfare of their children, have trained their minds to self denial, for the aid of their children, and by persistently turning their will in the direction of this duty have made the mother's self-sacrifice almost a matter of course.

ROOT OUT EVIL INCLINATION

There is no problem as important as the control of your individual temperament. Even a man of very moderate ability might achieve great success if he could control the weak or vicious impulses within him, and through concentration of will power concentrate such force as he has on one single purpose or set of purposes.

Man's intellect, it must be remembered, is the faculty that he has most recently acquired. Long before the intellect was developed, and there is still a great deal of development ahead of it, human beings were controlled by their appetites, their hatreds and selfishness.

Those old and long established demoniacal forces of the will still struggle for control, and they do control most of us. Drunkards, thieves, the dissolute, self-indulgent, and the foolishly vain are those whose minds are not strong enough to bend their will in a good direction, and to overcome settled animal habits.

But there is not one but could force himself to want to do that which he ought to do, if he would keep his mind constantly upon it. This fact has been demonstrated marvelously by the many religions, especially in their early stages.

CONTROL THE TEMPERMENT

If every one of us from now on would fix his mind with contempt upon his own shortcomings, realizing and despising them, and concentrating his thoughts and his will upon those things which he knows to be worth while, the improvement of the world today would be marvelous, that of the next generation still greater and the millennium of which we talk and which we shall some day see would hasten its advent greatly.

Fortunately, we are all working along these lines of self-improvement, more or less unconsciously. Is there any one that has not made, over and over, good resolutions by the thousands? The idea that these resolutions have no value because they are broken is absolutely false. No good resolution was ever wasted if it only lasted a minute. For every such resolution made in good faith indicates an effort of the will to do good.

No man's case is ever hopeless as long as he gets up in the morning determined to conquer the weakness that bothers him. No man or woman is beyond the chance of correction and final success, so long as he or she repeatedly and strongly feels the desire to turn the will in another and better direction.

If you look back a little way into history, you will see with amazement how much this constant struggling of the will has done for us. Not so long ago, all men were brutal, and not long before that a majority of them were cannibalistic savages.

In classic days, which we regard with reverence in Greece and Rome, the morality, or rather the lack of it, was shocking and apparently hopeless, brutal slavery, the father's power of life and death over his children, the habitual and legal exposure of infants to wild beasts, punishment for the slightest offenses with torture and death, combined with the gross sensuality, intemperance and debauchery, were features of a life which considered itself civilized.

The fact that we have outgrown such conditions is largely due to the hundreds of millions of individual good resolutions.

The law may permit infanticide, but the heart and the conscience do not permit it. The laws of every country at one time permitted slavery. But the individual conscience here and there, and finally everywhere, rose up against it and that sore spot has left the human race.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1924.

Last Two Days of Registration

Voters who have neglected to register, have two more opportunities to qualify for the presidential, state, district and county election to be held on Tuesday, November 4.

Friday and Saturday are the last of the four days of quadrennial registration in East Liverpool, the only registration city in Columbiana county.

Men and women who failed to enroll on October 2 or 9, must sign the precinct registrar's books this week if they desire to safeguard their right of franchise.

Failure to do so deprives them of a voice in the selection of governmental officers next month.

From 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. and 5 to 10 p. m. on Friday and Saturday, registrars shall be on duty in the 21 precincts of the city, prepared to enroll electors and issue transfers to voters who have changed their place of residence since the first enrollment day.

Less than one-half of East Liverpool's voters have enrolled. Consequently, it is a foregone conclusion that congestion is inevitable unless an effort is made by the women to qualify during the morning and early afternoon hours. The noon hour and from 5 to 10 p. m. are expected to be rush periods.

Remember everybody must register!

Unmended Roads

In a county where the main highways are going to pieces for lack of teamwork between the county and the incorporated villages and towns, a highway engineer makes this impressive statement:

"An expenditure of $50 a year will keep a mile of new pavement from deterioration. Neglect the road for a few years, and it will cost $5,000 to patch it."

These figures need not be taken too literally nor the contrast stretched too far. It is not likely that the $5,000 required to patch up a mile of long-neglected pavement would preserve a new pavement in its original perfection for 100 years. Yet there is more truth than fancy in the figures, and they drive home a needed lesson.

England has long been famous for its roads. Until the advent of the automobile, it maintained its macadam roads in perfect condition by keeping a road-mender and a stone pile along every main road at regular intervals of a mile or two, and it now maintains more solid pavements by the same policy. Americans are spending billions a year on new paving, and also losing billions a year because, when the paving is once laid, they usually neglect it for several years.

"That," remarks a New York correspondent, with marked approval, "is a commonplace for an Englishman, of course, who believes that a good suit is a good suit, even if it hasn't got two buttons just where the newest suits are buttoned."

Another manufacturer had a nest egg made of naphthalene which was reputed to kill lice and mites and at the same time act as a nest egg. Such a discovery, the department thought, would be worth much to poultry raisers if successful. It was found, however, that the "egg" had no effect on lice and mites.

The annual loss to agriculture from rodents has been estimated to exceed $500,000,000. This has been reduced materially through the campaigns led by the bureau of biological survey, and most of the rodents on a million acres of public and private lands have been destroyed.

Specialists of the survey study the habits and distribution of native and imported wild life in order to assist in preserving the useful and harmless species. From field and laboratory investigations, scientists of this bureau have been able to demonstrate that most species of native birds are of inestimable value to agriculture as destroyers of injurious insects. Of the 1,200 or more species of birds native to the United States and Canada less than 1 per cent are really injurious.

The bureau of soils has discovered the importance of knowing about soil conditions of other parts of the world, and their resemblance to soils in different states in this country. It was learned that almost every state resembled some area or country in Europe. For example, the Kentucky blue grass, that we think of as typically American, grows on limestone soil much like that of northern France. The soils of Old Bohemia are almost identical with

By ALICE LANGELIER.

PARIS, Oct. 15.—Paris soon will have to create a museum for the relics that are placed daily upon the Unknown Soldier's tomb under the Arch of Triumph. Flowers are removed when faded, but marble slabs, stelae and bronze palms are lasting, and, what is more, many are the gifts of famous personages and worthy of being preserved. These offerings now number 400 and are piled up in the little room of the Arch of Triumph, where the body of the Unknown Soldier was placed, awaiting the completion of the tomb. A few have been taken to the Chapel of St. Louis, in the Invalides, where visitors may see the stela offered by the king of Egypt, two elephant tusks given by the heir to the throne of Abyssinia, and the Crown of Thorns presented by the Armenian public.

A "Grass Widow Society" has sprung up in Prague, a novel organization which aims to unite all the divorced women of Czechoslovakia. There are said to be 27,000 of them in this country. They feel they need protection. A lawyer will be employed to help women seeking divorces, and a monthly divorce magazine will be published. Men will be allowed to join the society—only the good ones, though.

"Who'll buy my chestnuts at one sou apiece?" This is what the swarthy chestnut roasters are now demanding. Winter has made its appearance, and, with it, the picturesque Auvergnats from the south and the Spaniards from the Basque country. The trees of Auvergne, they say, are ravaged by a curious disease, which broke out 40 years ago among the Basque chestnut forests and has spread through France, Italy and Spain with such rapidity that the nut crop threatens to disappear. The Japanese variety of chestnut trees which will replace them will bear larger nuts, but much dearer ones. A sou apiece is a fabulous price for Frenchmen who remember when a big sack, large enough to warm the hands with, could be had for three or four pennies.

Gypsy music will again be heard in the gay city of Budapest. After October 1 the cafes will be allowed to keep open all night, if they like, as in the pre-war times. Severe restrictions of recent years have caused some of the larger ones to close forever, and other business establishments have taken their places. The new ruling will mean a gay capital and increased employment for many musicians.

A swarm of bees got into trouble with a pastry-maker in the Rue des Gobelins. His shop has been persistently invaded by the bees, which eat his pastries and leave without paying. Finally the proprietor discovered that they came from the gardens of the Gobelins tapestry manufactory, which belongs to the state. The bees have brought about a lawsuit, and somebody will have to pay the damage.

Interesting archaeological discoveries have been made in the course of excavation work being carried out in Paris, in preparation for the laying of new tramway lines and the piercing of new tunnels. While constructing a new sewer in the Rue Neuve Saint Pierre, workmen unearthed a number of human bones, five sarcophagi and numerous pieces of very old pottery. Work at a private house in the Rue de Valenciennes brought to light a leaden coffin containing the skeleton of a young man who lived in the convent on this spot. A Jewish cemetery of the thirteenth century was revealed at the corner of the famous "Boul Mich" and the Boulevard St. Germain. It was very likely abandoned in 1306, when Philip IV expelled the Jews. The Carnavalet museum is all the richer for a Hebrew funeral column, which was found in a perfect state of preservation.

A suggestion for "wet" countries comes from Constantinople, where drinking is tolerated in certain streets and strictly prohibited in others. There are "wet" streets and "dry" ones, and the government, which seems to think of everything, has placed the former very near the police stations.

Those of southeast Pennsylvania: One reason for the unusual success of the thrifty Pennsylvania farmer may be due to the fact that the soils of southeastern Pennsylvania are almost identical with those of southern Germany. Even the famous seed of Ireland is duplicated along the coast of Washington and Oregon.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Swift are the changes of the Luminous Lane. Up Broadway from Forty-Seventh street, where the Palais Royal is dark, shuttered and padlocked, a row of miniature Rue de Rivoli shops have bloomed like mushrooms over night.

They are all-night places and not one is more than four feet wide or five feet deep. But they glitter and sparkle with the dazzle that begins when the theaters open. The rentals are in excess of $10,000 a year and how they exist is a mystery.

There is a fudge shop with a background of silver curtains. Also a Cinderella boot shop with tiny oval windows. A Paris parfumerie with a fountain arrangement at the door spraying the delicate odor of a special blend that passersby cannot escape.

In the brilliantly lighted window are perfume sprayers, lip sticks, vanity boxes, rouge and adjustable eyelashes. A tall queenly woman with silver hair presides. She has a distinct Parisian accent and seems aloof to trade.

Next door the Maison Rose hat shop where chorus girls often lead hesitant admirers adroitly after the play. Then a sparkling nut and bon bon parlor. The Band Box hat shop displaying only the cloche hat in startling and vivid colors.

A beauty parlor with a window filled with testimonials from near stars and vaudeville artists. Right next door the Peter Pan boy bob parlor flooded by indirect lights and in charge of a comic supplement. Frenchman with waxed mustache and coat wisp at the waist.

Just around the corner on the Seventh avenue side, a miniature of London's Cheshire cheese, where only Welsh rarebit and a near beer are served, struggles for existence. It has just five small tables, but has held on for several months.

Broadway also has many new electric signs. One three flight up tailoring establishment heralds in letters five feet high: "I'm here to stay!" The wriggly kids on top of the Putnam building have been removed. The building is to come down, but in the interim a sign just as big has been erected. This time the figures are Eskimos running through the snows and they are hailing a brand of table water. Across the street below the Palace theater a razor sign displays five huge clocks set in a circle. Strangers may instantly learn the exact time in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, London and Yokohama by gazing at them.

Another innovation for Broadway is known as "Service Station for Men and Women." It is down in the basement a few steps below the old Claridge. A three-piece orchestra discourses and the place remains open all day and all night. There are telephone booths and lockers that may be rented by the month or year. There are pay wash rooms and self shaving booths. Laundry may be left and received there. A feature typical of Broadway is the "message exchange." For a dollar a month the high roller may receive his clandestine mail. Messenger service and valet service are also provided. Other features are parcel checking station, a haberdashery with a room for changing the shirt, collar, socks or underwear. Men and women may have their shoes shined and repaired while waiting. A theatrical ticket agency is still another feature. The slogan of the service station is "A Home Miles From Home."

On my way home, however, I found the real bright spot of the evening. Blind George in his newspaper hutch at the Bryant Park corner has a radio attachment and was seated in his chair listening to speeches and band concerts in all parts of the country.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

WE DO JUST WHAT WE WANT TO DO

One of our readers some time ago wrote as follows:

"You praise a mother's devotion to her children, how she runs into the fire to get them out. But isn't it a fact that a mother does that because she wants to do it? Doesn't she do it because she would rather do that than anything else, and, if that is so, is there any special reason for praising her? Isn't it a fact that we all do what we want to do? If it is, what is the use of blaming or praising one more than another? One man gets drunk because he wants to get drunk, others teach Sunday school because they want to teach Sunday school. What right have we to praise him or blame him, if he cannot control his wants?"

There is enough deceptive truth in our friend's letter to make it worth answering. It is true that we all do "what we want to do." We must want to do the thing in order to do it, for our will controls us. We can only do that which we will to do.

It is not, however, a fact that a man cannot help wanting one thing more than another. It is not a fact that the man who gets drunk because he wants to is no more and no less praiseworthy than the man that denies himself for his family of children because he wants to.

Each wants to do that which he does and at the moment, perhaps, neither could help acting as he does. But the man who wants that which is right is a very much better man than he who wants that which is wrong. And it is not a fact that a man is unable to control his wants. It is not a fact that a man must act like a machine, obeying blindly inclinations beyond his control.

LET US TRY TO BE WISE

The task that every man should put before himself is to direct his inclinations in the best possible channel. Every man and woman, and every child out of babyhood, should struggle to develop within the mind the highest possible moral tendencies. Every one of us can make himself better if he will study his inclinations and try to root out those that lead to evil.

It is true that the mother who risks her life for her child, or the soldier who sacrifices his life for his country for his beliefs, does that which he wants to do. But it is not true that the mother or the man of brave convictions is only the equal of the individual controlled by selfish desires.

If motherly love has become universal, it is because mothers for hundreds of centuries have kept their thoughts upon the welfare of their children, have trained their minds to self denial, for the aid of their children, and by persistently turning their will in the direction of this duty have made the mother's self-sacrifice almost a matter of course.

ROOT OUT EVIL INCLINATION

There is no problem as important as the control of your individual temperament. Even a man of very moderate ability might achieve great success if he could control the weak or vicious impulses within him, and through concentration of will power concentrate such forces as he has on one single purpose or set of purposes.

Man's intellect, it must be remembered, is the faculty that he has most recently acquired. Long before the intellect was developed, and there is still a great deal of development ahead of it, human beings were controlled by their appetites, their hatreds and selfishness.

These old and long established demonstrations of the will still struggle for control, and they do control most of us. Drunkards, thieves, the dissolute, self-indulgent, and the foolishly vain are those whose minds are not strong enough to bend their will in a good direction, and to overcome settled animal habits.

But there is not one but could force himself to want to do that which he ought to do, if he would keep his mind constantly upon it. This fact has been demonstrated marvelously by the many religions, especially in their early stages.

CONTROL THE TEMPERMENT

If every one of us from now on would fix his mind with centripet upon his own shortcomings, realizing and desiring them, and concentrating his thoughts and his will upon those things which he knows to be worth while, the improvement of the world today would be marvelous, that of the next generation still greater and the millennium of which we talk and which we shall some day see would hasten its advent greatly.

Fortunately, we are all working along these lines of self-improvement, more or less unconsciously. Is there any one that has not made, over and over, good resolutions by the thousands? The idea that these resolutions have no value because they are broken is absolutely false. No good resolution was ever wasted if it only lasted a minute. For every such resolution made in good faith indicates an effort of the will to do good.

No man's case is ever hopeless as long as he gets up in the morning determined to conquer the weakness that bothers him. No man or woman is beyond the chance of correction and final success so long as he or she repeatedly and strongly feels the desire to turn the will in another and better direction.

If you look back a little way into history, you will see with amazement how much this constant struggling of the will has done for us. Not so long ago, all men were brutal, and not long before that a majority of them were cannibalistic savages.

In classic days, which we regard with reverence, in Greece and Rome, the morality, or rather the lack of it, was shocking and apparently hopeless, brutal slavery, the father's power of life and death over his children, the habitual and legal exposure of infants to wild beasts, punishment for the slightest offenses with torture and death, combined with the gross sensuality, intemperance and debauchery, were features of a life which considered itself civilized.

The fact that we have outgrown such conditions is largely due to the hundreds of millions of individual good resolutions.

The law may permit infanticide, but the heart and the conscience do not permit it. The laws of every country at one time permitted slavery. But the individual conscience here and there, and finally everywhere, rose up against it and that sore spot has left the human race.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Thomas Fisher Hostess at Meeting Of Travelers' Club

The initial meeting of the Travelers' club was held Tuesday evening, in the attractively decorated home of Mrs. Thomas H. Fisher in Highland colony, with Mrs. W. E. Dunlap as associate hostess. Fall flowers and autumn leaves were used in the effects. The meeting opened with roll call, to which each guest responded with vacation echoes. Mrs. Clyde Larkins delivered the president's greeting, after which Miss Adeline Blake discussed "Three Historical Women". Miss Agnes Pfister told of "American Martyred Women".

During the informal social hour following the program, programs for the year were distributed. Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

In three weeks the club will be entertained at the home of Miss Bess Gamble of West Fourth street, with Mrs. Edward Teeman as associate hostess.

E. Liverpool Guests Attend Wedding In Buffalo, N. Y.

Several guests from East Liverpool were in attendance at the marriage of Miss Mary E. Miller, daughter of the Rev. E. V. E. Strasbaugh, of Spring Grove, N. Y., to Howard A. Huntsman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Huntsman, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., which was solemnized on Thursday evening, October 2, by Rev. Garret Hondelink, pastor of the First Reformed Church of Buffalo, N. Y. The bride wore rose color silk crepe trimmed with white maribon and rhinestone ornaments, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Florence B. Shaffer, wore pink silk crepe trimmed with black velvet, with a black hat and carried pink sweet peas.

John H. Turney, of Niagara Falls, was best man.

After the ceremony a reception took place at the home of the bridegroom's parents in Niagara Falls. On their return from a trip through New York state and Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Huntsman will be at home after October 1 in Rochester.

Bethany Class Meets

A business session of the Bethany Sunday school class of the First Church of Christ was held Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Frank Chapman of East Fifth street, at which 30 guests were present.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the social committee, with Mrs. Thomas Peak as hostess.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Workman of Newell.

The Bethany class has an enrollment of 250. Rev. E. P. Wise organized the class in the old church on Broadway. Enoch Jones is the teacher.

Sunday morning, October 12, the attendance was 197, with a collection of $16.00. Sunday morning, Rev. Wise attended the class session, when a window, in memory of his wife, was unveiled. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Stolberg, of Canton, and son, Paul, of Cleveland.

Speedily Divorced

ELAYIA, O.—It took but thirty minutes for Bonnie I. Rahmer to secure a divorce from Louis M. The contents of his letter, she said, were so shocking as to cause her to lose all love and respect for him.

Goldwyn Picture Is Program Feature At the American

That motion pictures are on as high a plane as modern writing, is the claim of Emmet Flynn, the Goldwyn director, who has just finished a feature production, "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model," from Owen Davis' old stage melodrama, the film version of which has been booked at the American theatre for two days beginning Thursday.

"The shouts of the cynics that motion pictures are made for child minds weary me," Flynn asserts. "Motion pictures as a whole are on fully as high a plane as the novels and stories turned out wholesale by our modern authors."

"There are poor pictures certainly—so are there poor short stories and novels. Look at the magazines on the newsstands. Read the stories to be found in, well—any of them. Ninety per cent of them are trite, not especially clever. Most of them have stereotyped plots. Yet the men who write them are looked on as the cleverest of the nation."

"How many really good novels are written in a year. Very few—certainly no more of them than there are good pictures made."

"Yet the pictures are attacked as childish, unreal, meaningless. And the attackers generally are the same men who write the meaningless modern fiction."

"The writers get away with it—(for this reason. The written product is cloaked in a mass of smiles and complicated words and thus judged brilliant by the readers—most of whom don't understand the smiles or know the meaning of the words."

"We directors can't be fooled by our audiences with words. We tell our story in action, and that can be presented in only one way. Audience is on the same footing with critic in judging a motion picture. If the hero hits the villain with a chair on the screen, the audience knows he did it."

just that, because they saw him. But a writer can launch into a discussion of some subject on which he is poorly informed, the reader will wallow through it and say: "that must be a good story—there are a lot of big words in it."

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are pleasant to take, entail no dieting or exercise, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A box is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat. You can reduce steadily and easily without going through long siege of tireless exercise and starvation diet with fear of bad effects. Get a box and start getting slimmer now.

DRINK WATER WHEN KIDNEYS HURT YOU

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and sluggish. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Liver Trouble Causes High Blood Pressure

Medical science knows that poisons actually cause death in a few days if not eliminated by Nature's processes. Because it destroys these deadly poisons, the liver is our most important organ—the body's wonderful purifier.

The liver prevents the formation of body poisons that cause diseases of the heart, kidneys, blood vessels and are chiefly responsible for premature old age.

When the liver becomes weak, the poisons are sucked up by the blood and health is broken down. Physicians know that the liver cannot be regulated by drugs, but a safe Nature substance has been discovered which will

The Past Masters' degree was conferred on Marion Swan, members of Chester lodge, No. 149, A. F. and A. M., at the meeting of Hancock county chapter, No. 14, R. A. M., held Tuesday evening at New Cumberland.

Among the members of the local lodge who attended the meeting were: T. J. Jones, H. B. Lynch, C. W. Davis, George Whaley, R. L. Parker and Marion Swan.

Weldon Moves Restaurant.

F. C. Weldon has moved his "Pop-lun" restaurant into the new building constructed on Carolina avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets by Watt Ward.

The restaurant and confectionery are situated on the ground floor of the building. A lunch counter, tables and kitchen are on this floor.

The restaurant has been temporarily located in the W. W. Ingram property in Carolina avenue since the building formerly housing the restaurant was destroyed by fire.

Given Anti-Diphtheria Treatment.

A number of pupils in the Central school were given the second treatment of toxin anti-toxin as a preventative against diphtheria by Dr. C. W. Many of the Hancock county health unit Wednesday.

The first injection of the serum was also given several children of the school.

Dr. Many was assisted by Miss Marion Bell, county health nurse.

Hallowe'en Party Postponed.

The Hallowe'en party that was to have been held Thursday evening by the Bible Searchers class of the First Methodist Episcopal church has been postponed indefinitely because of the reconstruction of the tabernacle.

"Durbur," Health Drink, is Popular At Radio Show

"Durbur," termed the "world's greatest health drink," a product of East Liverpool, was popular among radio fans who attended the radio show, held at Cleveland during the week of September 20 to 27.

At a Humphrey stand maintained in the huge Cleveland auditorium, where the radio show was conducted, the receipts from "Durbur" amounted to $236.10. "Durbur" is now not only being sold in Cleveland and Pittsburgh, but in many other large cities of the United States.

The Parent Durbur Company of America maintains its home office in East Liverpool.

So charmed were Jean Cassidy (seated) and Frances Lee Detchmendi, St. Louis stenographers, with the "mean" saxophone-playing of a young man, that they ran away from home to see him. At least, that's what they told Chicago police, by whom they are being held.

Mysterious Smith Plans Escape From Coffin at Strand

At the Strand theatre one of the biggest mysteries of the age will be produced tonight, when Mysterious Smith will permit himself to be placed in a coffin after first being strapped into a regulation "straight jacket" put on by a committee of well known business men, the coffin will then be securely strapped and sealed and from this Smith has promised to make his escape within three minutes' time.

while the committee is watching to see that he has no help.

It is said that Smith is the only man in the world who has successfully performed this feat and has created much excitement and favorable comment in both this and foreign countries. It is expected that the theatre will not be large enough to accommodate the crowds tonight.

This will be given in connection with his regular program and Mme. Olga, the mind reader, who will tell you what you want to know.

TWO PASTORS RESIGN OFFICE

Steuvenville Presbytery Honors Rev. Thomas Newcomb.

Rev. Thomas Newcomb, pastor of the Chester United Presbyterian church, was appointed superintendent of missions of the Steuvenville Presbytery at the fall session of the Presbytery held Tuesday in Chester.

The resignation of two officers of the Presbytery were accepted. Rev. W. W. Baldinger of Steuvenville, clerk, resigned and Dr. J. O. Campbell, pastor of the Second church, East Liverpool, was appointed in his place. Rev. Baldinger will leave soon for South Kortright, N. Y. Rev. Newcomb succeeds Rev. Roy Lash of Bergholz, who resigned his office to continue his studies in Pittsburgh. He will continue to preach at the Bergholz church.

Rev. Newcomb will have charge of filling vacancies in the Presbytery.

Ralph Frost of St. Louis, Mo., former Chester resident, was granted honorarium by the Presbytery after his death Tuesday morning. He returned immediately to St. Louis.

Rev. L. J. Davidson, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, East Liverpool, presided at the sessions and Rev. J. Alvin Orr, D. D., of Pittsburgh was the principal speaker at the afternoon session.

Nineteen churches were represented.

The First church of East Liverpool was selected as the place for the April meeting.

Why Stay Fat? You Can Reduce

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too tiresome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola's Proslim Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They are pleasant to take, do not require exercise, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A box is sold at one dollar by all druggists the world over, or send the price direct to the Marmola Co., General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat. You can reduce steadily and easily without going through long siege of tireless exercise and starvation diet with fear of bad effects. Get a box and start getting slimmer now.

In 24 hours the poison toxins will be removed. Your liver will be regulated. Blood purification will begin. Sallow skin will clear. You will feel so much better you will know you have found the cause of your ill health. Dioxol tablets are harmless, tasteless and cost less than two cents each. These genuine ox gall tablets are prepared only under the name "Dioxol." If any tablet is offered you under another name, refuse it. Accept only Dioxol in the original genuine package.

CZAR TO RULE NEW YORK CITY DANCE HALLS

General Tightening up
of Morals Demanded
by Women's Club.

PLAN BLACKLIST

Proprietors Organize to Improve Conditions
Voluntarily.

NEW YORK — The bathing beauties have their will, and the movies have their Will Hays, and New York's dance halls are to have their czar. For such will be the title of the city official appointed to regulate the activities of the Metropolitan Dance Hall association, recently organized here in an effort to make local dance halls "the proper environment" for young people.

The association was founded following allegations made by the dance hall committee of the Women's City Club that the light fantastic was being danced in an immoral fashion in certain dance palaces. When the ladies recommended that some of these places be "wiped out," the proprietors banded together in an effort to improve conditions voluntarily.

The association pledged itself to cooperate with the women's committee, with the policewomen who inspect dance halls, and with city officials who desire to maintain a high standard for amusement places where young people gather. Proprietors of dance halls who do not line up with the association's program will be blacklisted.

"Closed" Halls Taboo.
Stating that they desire to make dance halls safe places for young girls, officials of the association declared that they would not tolerate "closed" dance halls, where only men are admitted. Hostesses, they added, must be more than 19 years of age.

In a popular dance hall a girl can make approximately $2 an evening. She is paid five cents for a dance, which lasts only two minutes, and can manage to dance 60 times every evening. The large attendance is due to the desire of men from out of town to "step around" a bit of an evening. The dance hall is the only place where they can find a partner. In their yearning for companionship these men often take the girls out to dine when the hall closes, so that the girls add to their earnings by cutting down on their meal tickets.

In addition to the czar the dance halls will have a czarina, who will be a member of the women's committee which attacked the dance halls. It is not known who the czarines will be, unless the men who frequent the dance halls may be called that.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

Q. Who was the first movie star to go to Europe on location? O. M. N. A. Pauline Frederick was the first. Ten years ago she was engaged by Famous Players to play the part of Donna Roma in "The Eternal City," the company journeying to Rome for several shots.

Q. Why did Detroit purchase the Buffalo team? I. C.

A. Detroit purchased the Buffalo team in 1885 in order to get the "Big Four"—Brothers, Richardson, Rowe and White.

Q. Are birds instrumental in the destruction of the cotton boll weevil? E. S. T.

A. Special study by the department of agriculture resulted in finding that about 66 species prey upon this insect pest.

Q. I have a number of one-cent postal cards, can I redeem them? A. T. T.

A. According to the postal laws and regulations, uncanceled, unexpired and spoiled postal cards not treated by bronzing, enameled or other processes of coating, may be redeemed in postage stamps or other stamped paper only at 75 per cent of their face value when presented by the original purchaser.

Q. What is the literal meaning of "paragraph"? A. T. G.

A. The word means "a writing beside." The sign was used to call attention to something in the text. It generally indicated a change of subject.

Q. What is verjuice and how is it used in cooking? C. V. C.

A. It is the acid juice of green apples, crab apples or other unripe fruit and was formerly used as a con-

ment. It has survived in modern cookery in a limited way and may occasionally serve a useful purpose when lemon juice is not readily obtainable.

Q. What signature does a woman use in signing a hotel register? J. L. L.

A. The name which appears on her visiting card.

Q. While traveling in India I observed that the Hindus carry small brass bowls. Why is this? L. D. N.

A. Every Hindu, even a child, carries his individual drinking bowl. The bowl is generally filled with water. The custom arises from the fact that no Hindu may drink water which has been drawn by a person of the wrong caste, nor may he drink water upon which a low-caste person has looked.

A. Mekunna, meaning The Road Home; Wanaki, The Peace Dweller; Minooki, The Good Land, and Washara, Beautiful.

Q. What fuel was used in the braziers found in ancient Egyptian houses? V. D.

A. Charcoal was the fuel employed.

Q. Who painted the portrait of Comptess Potocka which is so popular? T. S. T.

A. The artist is unknown.

Q. What is a yam? H. H.

A. The term yam is applied colloquially in the United States to certain kinds of sweet potatoes. In reality, the yam is the edible tuberous root of various plants of the genus Dioscorea, which is used largely as a substitute for the potato in tropical countries.

Tri-state Poultry And Pet Stock Show In New Building

The Tri-State Poultry and Pet Stock Association, working in co-operation with the agriculture committee of the chamber of commerce, has completed plans for the second annual exhibition, which will be held on the second floor of the new Harris-Buick company, West Fifth street, opposite the Liverpool Motor Company's headquarters during the week starting December 22.

The association is arranging for an exhibit which is expected to eclipse that of last year, the first attempted here for many years. Chicken fanciers from Steubenville, Youngstown, Wheeling, Canton and the Beaver Valley are expected to display their stock.

Whale oil produced in Norway last year totalled 338,000 barrels.

Scene in My Little Girl, the movie comedy to be presented at the Ceramic Wednesday evening by the Chicago Stock Co.

WEIRTON PLANS $50,000 DEPOT

Pennsylvania Company
Calls for Bids on Structure.

Plans for Weirton's new $50,000 Pennsylvania railroad station have been completed and have been placed in the hands of contractors. The company has asked that concerns make their bids immediately.

The new structure will be modern and of rough texture faced brick, marble and granite construction with a variegated slate roof.

It will be built in rectangular shape with the waiting rooms and ticket offices at one end and the express room at the other end.

The present building will be moved to East Weirton to supplant the one-room structure there. The company agreed to the latter action at the request of D. M. Weir of the Weirton Steel company. Many commuters to Steubenville use the East Weirton station.

I Never Burn

My skin
By Edna Wallace Hopper

I live in the sun and the wind in summer, but I never burn my skin. That is because the greatest of experts told me how to prevent it.

The sun is good for the skin—get all you can of it. Only certain rays—the ultra violet rays—do harm. Bar them out, and the sun will never burn. Tan bars those rays, so tanned skins do not burn. But science has found a way to do that without changing the skin's color. It has found a substance, harmless and colorless, which bars out only those burning rays.

By my experts' advice I had that substance embodied in my vanishing type of Youth Cream. I apply it before any exposure. After bathing I apply it again, for water removes it. I have never had sunburn, windburn, tan or freckles since my experts taught me this.

Now I am placing all my hope at every woman's call, and this one is among them. Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream is supplied by all druggists, all toilet counters. The Vanishing Type contains the substance which prevents sunburn. The cost is 60c per jar, and every jar carries my guarantee that it does what my experts claim. Also in 35c tubes. Testing Cattle.
ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O.—Federal veterinarians have tested 23,352 cattle on 4,180 Belmont county farms for tuberculosis during the last five years. Only 350 cattle have had to be killed out of this vast number. The veterinarians who made the tests report traveling more than 14,500 miles in the last fourteen months while making the tests. Only six farmers refused to pay fee necessary to have the cattle tested, this amounting to 25 cents a head.

Its Value Proved in Thousands of Cars

The annals of the automotive industry do not record a quicker and more consistent success than that of the Traffic Transmission

(Campbell Patent)

Announced in September, 1923, it is now in use on thousands of Chandler cars.

That fact is important to all who are contemplating the purchase of an automobile; for any man who invests $1600 or more in a car is entitled to enjoy the many advantages in driving that the Traffic Transmission makes possible.

Because it is the only car with the Traffic Transmission, the Chandler is the only car in which the gears cannot be clashed

—the only car in which any driver cannot fail—or even falter—in changing from high to second or low and from low to second or high

—the only car in which it is always possible to make a split-second snap to a lower gear, and brake the car sharply on hills and in traffic

—the only car which solves the difficulties of the old-fashioned transmission without changing the use of the shift lever or the clutch.

That is why the Traffic Transmission will always rank as one of the great steps forward in automotive design. That is why you should see and drive a Chandler today!

CZAR TO RULE NEW YORK CITY DANCE HALLS

General Tightening up
of Morals Demanded
by Women's Club.

PLAN BLACKLIST

Proprietors Organize to Improve Conditions
Voluntarily.

NEW YORK — The bathing beauties have their censors, the movies have their Will Hays, and New York's dance halls are to have their czar. For such will be the title of the city official appointed to regulate the activities of the Metropolitan Dance Hall association, recently organized here in an effort to make local dance halls "the proper environment" for young people.

The association was founded following allegations made by the dance hall committee of the Women's City Club that the light fantastic was being danced in an immoral fashion in certain dance palaces. When the ladies recommended that some of these places be "wiped out," the proprietors banded together in an effort to improve conditions voluntarily.

The association pledged itself to cooperate with the women's committee, with the policewomen who inspect dance halls, and with city officials who desire to maintain a high standard for amusement places where young people gather. Proprietors of dance halls who do not line up with the association's program will be blacklisted.

"Closed" Halls Taboo.
Stating that they desire to make dance halls safe places for young girls, officials of the association declared that they would not tolerate "closed" dance halls, where only men are admitted. Hostesses, they added, must be more than 10 years of age.

In a popular dance hall a girl can make approximately $3 an evening. She is paid five cents for a dance, which lasts only two minutes, and can manage to dance 60 times every evening. The large attendance is due to the desire of men from out of town to "step around" a bit of an evening. The dance hall is the only place where they can find a partner.

In their yearning for companionship these men often take the girls out to dine when the hall closes, so that the girls add to their earnings by cutting down on their meal tickets.

In addition to the czar the dance halls will have a czarina, who will be a member of the women's committee which attacked the dance halls. It is not known who the czarines will be, unless the men who frequent the dance halls may be called that.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

Q. Who was the first movie star to go to Europe on location? O. M. N.

A. Pauline Frederick was the first. Ten years ago she was engaged by Famous Players to play the part of Donna Roma in "The Eternal City," the company journeying to Rome for several shots.

Q. Why did Detroit purchase the Buffalo team? I. C.

A. Detroit purchased the Buffalo team in 1885 in order to get the "Big Four"—Brouthers, Richardson, Rowe and White.

Q. Are birds instrumental in the destruction of the cotton boll weevil? E. S. T.

A. Special study by the department of agriculture resulted in finding that about 66 species prey upon this insect pest.

Q. I have a number of one-cent postal cards, can I redeem them? A. T. T.

A. According to the postal laws and regulations, uncanceled, unserviceable and spoiled postal cards not treated by bronzing, enameling or other processes of coating, may be redeemed in postage stamps or other stamped paper only at 75 per cent of their face value when presented by the original purchaser.

Q. What is the literal meaning of "paragraph"? A. T. G.

A. The word means "a writing beside." The sign was used to call attention to something in the text. It generally indicated a change of subject.

Q. What is verjuice and how is it used in cooking? C. V. C.

A. It is the acid juice of green apples, crab apples or other unripe fruit and was formerly used as a condi-

ment. It has survived in modern cookery in a limited way and may occasionally serve a useful purpose when lemon juice is not readily obtainable.

Q. What signature does a woman use in signing a hotel register? J. L. L.

A. The name which appears on her visiting card.

Q. While traveling in India I observed that the Hindus carry small brass bowls. Why is this? L. D. N.

A. Every Hindu, even a child, carries his individual drinking bowl. The bowl is generally filled with water. The custom arises from the fact that no Hindu may drink water which has been drawn by a person of the wrong caste, nor may he drink water upon which a low-caste person has looked.

Q. How long is the Lincoln highway and is it all concrete surfaced? J. S.

A. According to the latest reports this highway has a total mileage of 3,142.6. The Lincoln highway types are as follows: Concrete, 505.1 miles; brick, 110.9; macadam, 450.3; graded gravel, 1,205.4; natural gravel, 187.5; graded earth, 387.3; natural earth, 74.6; paved city streets, 220.5 miles.

Q. Give some Indian names appropriate for a country place. G. S. P.

A. Mekunna, meaning The Road Home; Wanaki, The Peace Dweller; Minooki, The Good Land, and Washara, Beautiful.

Q. What fuel was used in the braziers found in ancient Egyptian houses? V. D.

A. Charcoal was the fuel employed.

Q. Who painted the portrait of Countess Potocka which is so popular? T. S. T.

A. The artist is unknown.

Q. What is a yam? H. H.

A. The term yam is applied colloquially in the United States to certain kinds of sweet potatoes. In reality, the yam is the edible tuberous root of various plants of the genus Dioscorea, which is used largely as a substitute for the potato in tropical countries.

Tri-state Poultry And Pet Stock Show In New Building

The Tri-State Poultry and Pet Stock Association, working in co-operation with the agriculture committee of the chamber of commerce, has completed plans for the second annual exhibition, which will be held on the second floor of the new Harris-Buick company, West Fifth street, opposite the Liverpool Motor Company's headquarters during the week starting December 22.

The association is arranging for an exhibit which is expected to eclipse that of last year, the first attempted here for many years. Chicken fanciers from Steubenville, Youngstown, Wheeling, Canton and the Beaver Valley are expected to display their stock.

Whale oil produced in Norway last year totaled 338,000 barrels.

Calls for Bids on Structure.

Plans for Weirton's new $50,000 Pennsylvania railroad station have been completed and have been placed in the hands of contractors. The company has asked that concerns make their bids immediately.

The new structure will be modern and of rough texture faced brick, marble and granite construction with a variegated slate roof.

It will be built in rectangular shape with the waiting rooms and ticket offices at one end and the express room at the other end.

The present building will be moved to East Weirton to supplant the one-room structure there. The company agreed to the latter action at the request of D. M. Weir of the Weirton Steel company. Many commuters to Steubenville use the East Weirton station.

I Never Burn

My skin

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I live in the sun and the wind in summer, but I never burn my skin. That is because the greatest of experts told me how to prevent it.

The sun is good for the skin—get all you can of it. Only certain rays—the ultra violet rays—do harm. B a r them out, and the sun will never burn.

Tan bars those rays, so tanned skins do not burn. But science has found a way to do that without changing the skin's color. It has found a substance, harmless and colorless, which bars out only those burning rays.

By my experts' advice I had that substance embodied in my vanishing type of Youth Cream. I apply it before any exposure. After bathing I apply it again, for water removes it. I have never had sunburn, windburn, tan or freckles since my experts taught me this.

Now I am placing all my hopes at every woman's call, and this one is among them. Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream is supplied by all druggists, all toilet counters. Mechanical Tricks That Aid the Swindler

It Looks Easy to Knock Over a Tenpin with a Swinging Bowling Ball Suspended from a Frame Above. The Game Is Simply to Swing the Ball to the Right of the Pin So That It Will Strike the Pin Coming Back. But if a Grifter Is Operating the Game Dishonestly, Either He Shifts the Unsteady Frame, Throwing the Ball Off

WHEN a carnival has come to your town, you've bought numbers on a prize wheel, thrown baseballs at canvas-covered cats, rolled little wooden balls down tiny bowling alleys, or tried some other of the many "opportunities" offered you, to win one of the many flashy prizes so enticingly displayed. Has it ever occurred to you how seldom you have won, or how seldom you ever have seen any one else win? The explanation of this was given by a retired showman to Walter D. Gibson, writing in Popular Science Monthly.

While there are plenty of honest men and games in the traveling shows, many of the games of 'chance and skill' that are prominent features of every carnival can be made cunning swindles by misuse of the principles of science.

Now, a dishonest carnival gamester, or 'grifter,' as he calls himself, probably doesn't fit in with your notions of a scientist, and yet he is just that, for it is by employing the laws of physics and mechanics that he fixes his games to remove your chance of winning. He's a psychologist, too. He understands the workings of your mind and uses that knowledge to coax the money out of your pockets.

"The games of the grifter fall into two general classifications—games of chance, in which you trust entirely to luck to win a prize, and games of 'science and skill,' in which your chance of winning presumably depends on your own ability. The games of chance usually are operated fairly, for here the well-known mathematical principle, the law of averages, makes the grifter a winner. When you win a prize on a paddle wheel, for example, there are always enough non-winners to pay for the prize and give the operator a profit to boot. Yet even in such a game the grifter employs his tricks to increase his earnings.

"The percentage wheel is one of these devices that may be 'gaffed' or controlled by taking advantage of the law of gravity. It resembles a paddle wheel, but is divided into eight large sections, each of which has five subdivisions. Correspondingly numbered sections are painted on the counter. The player places a coin on the 'lay-down.' If the wheel stops at the number he is playing, he is paid 10 to 1, and if his coin is on the center subdivision, 3 to 1. With the playing price a dime and eight persons are playing, five spins of the wheel pay the operator four dollars, from which, by the law of averages, his profit will be about two dollars and sixty cents.

"But if all the places are not taken and

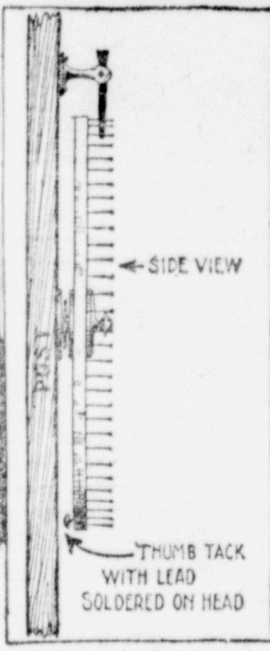

How the Crooked Operator of a Percentage Wheel Takes Advantage of the Law of Gravity to Take Your Money Is Shown in the Side-View Diagram. He Offers to Pay You 10 to 1 if the Wheel Stops at a Number Corresponding to the Number on Which You Place Your Money. To Make a Clean-Up He Deftly Places a Leaded Thumb-Tack Into the Back of the Wheel Opposite a Number That Is Not Being Played.

the grifter wants to clean up, he deftly places a thumb-tack, weighted with a drop of lead, on the rear of the wheel opposite a number that is not being played. The weight of the tack causes the wheel to stop at the 'open' number; consequently, the operator does not have to 'pay off,' and the 'play' is all profit.

"One of the most popular games of the type of so-called 'science and skill' is the knife rack, where rows of attractive-looking deerfoot knives line the booth. When you pause at his stand, the operator shows you how easy it is to drop a little wooden ring over the handle in order to take away the knife as a prize.

Even if you buy a hundred rings, you never will win. It is absolutely impossible to toss a ring over one of the knife handles from the angle at which you must throw, for the handles have slanting ends, and the knives are turned so that you are throwing the rings at the flat end of the handle that faces you, and not at the point.

"The grifter is a keen practical psychologist. He knows that you come to a carnival to have a good time, and that you are willing to pay for it.

"Take the 'three-pin game.' All you have to do to win at this is to roll a little ball down a miniature bowling alley and knock over three tenpins. If you do it, you get a dollar bill. But you never knock down more than two, because the two front pins are so set that the ball passes between them without striking both at the same time. If you get discouraged but look prosperous, the operator displays more of his 'art,' using a confederate known as a 'capper,' or a 'shill' to lure you on. The confederate can make a perfect shot every time, because the operator has set the pins closer together for him.

The swing ball game is a notorious goldmine for the grifter. Here a ten-pin stands on a counter lined with the inevitable flashy prizes. Beside the pin hangs a bowling ball suspended from a frame above. The game is to swing the ball to the right of the pin so that it will knock the pin over on its return swing. Purposely faulty construction renders the frame wobbly, so that the operator has only to lean against it to throw the ball from its course. The pin also is made lopsided and off center so the game goes against you.

"To knock a large canvas tom cat from a rack only a few feet away with a ball seems like an easy way to win a prize—but try to do it! The cat leaves the rack only when the shill tries his luck. In this case the gamester uses a little physics to cheat you. Inside of the cat is a movable weight. Pushing this to the bottom practically anchors the cat to the shelf by lowering its center of gravity to its base. When the shill throws, the weight is shifted to the center by tipping the cat upside down. This raises the center of gravity so that the ball may easily knock the cat to the ground.

Attempting to Throw a Ring Over One of the Winning Pins on a Crooked Clothes-Line Game Is Hopeless. If You Win You Lose; for the Grifter Has a Selected Winning Number That He Can Transform Into Losers by the Simple Process of Turning the Pin Upside Down.

"The grifter's ingenuity is shown by the way he 'rigs' various forms of 'striker' that appear to be genuine strength-testing machines. The 'high striker' on which the player swings a wooden mallet to drive a lead weight up a long wire track to strike a gong, likewise is subject to control by the operator. After ringing the bell once or twice, players always seem to lose strength. The track on which the lead weight travels is connected with one of the guy wires. When you start, tightening the track and allowing you to score. When he takes his weight from the guy wire the track becomes slack and the weight bumps against the post. When the wire is slack, Samson himself could pound all day and never hit the bell.

"Yet I would not have you believe that all games such as are mentioned are dishonestly operated. In a large number of them the house is content to let the mathematical law of averages take its course. It is with the tricks of the swindler that I have been dealing. Don't join that number by rushing blindly into the grifter's hands. Patronize the rides and the legitimate booths that you know are genuine and the gambling parasite will quickly fade away."

A Desk to Foil the Bandit

A DESK of novel construction, meant for the defense of cashiers against bandits, has been newly patented in this country by Israel Kamin, of Toronto, Ontario.

It has a flat top covered with sheet steel, which, being pivoted at both ends, and provided with a weight for the purpose, will instantly turn from the horizontal to the vertical when a bolt is released.

The cashier, in his cage, can be approached only from the front. The hold-up man, suddenly appearing, says, "Hand over what money you've got!" It is the conventional form of procedure.

The cashier, taken by surprise, has nevertheless presence of mind enough to insert the toe of his foot into a stirrup beneath his desk. Slight pressure on the stirrup releases the bolt, and the desk top (which sits inside of the frame of the desk) turns up to the vertical, between the cashier and the robber.

Mechanical Tricks That Aid the Swindler

It Looks Easy to knock Over a Tengin with a Swinging Bowling Ball Suspended from a Frame Above. The Game Is Simply to Swing the Ball to the Right of the Pin So That It Will Strike the Pin Coming Back. But if a Grifter Is Operating the Game Dishonestly, Either He Shifts the Unsteady Frame, Throwing the Ball Off

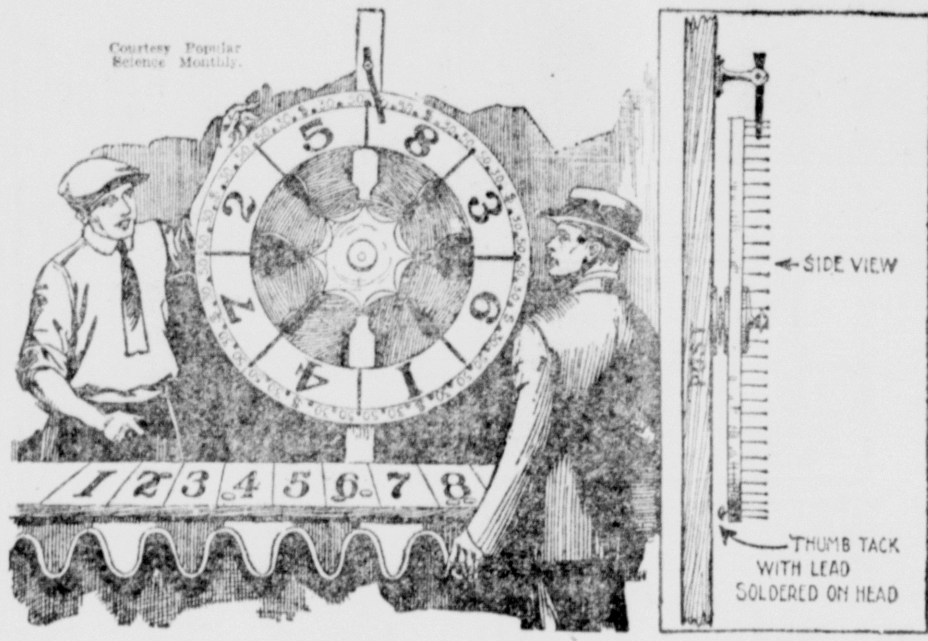

WHEN a carnival has come to your town, you've bought numbers on a prize wheel, thrown baseballs at a canvas-covered cat, rolled little wooden balls down tiny bowling alleys, or tried some other of the many "opportunities" offered you, to win one of the many flashy prizes so enticingly displayed.

Has it ever occurred to you how seldom you have won, or how seldom you ever have seen any one else win? The explanation of this was given by a retired showman to Walter D. Gibson, writing in Popular Science Monthly.

"While there are plenty of honest men and games in the traveling shows, many of the games of 'chance and skill' that are prominent features of every carnival can be made cunning swindles by misuse of the principles of science.

"Now, a dishonest carnival gamester, or 'grifter,' as he calls himself, probably doesn't fit in with your notions of a scientist, and yet he is just that, for it is by employing the laws of physics and mechanics that he fixes his games to remove your chance of winning. He's a psychologist, too. He understands the workings of your mind and uses that knowledge to coax the money out of your pockets.

"The games of the grifter fall into two general classifications—games of chance, in which you trust entirely to luck to win the grifter wants to clean up, he deftly places a thumb-tack, weighted with a drop of lead, on the rear of the wheel opposite a number that is not being played. The weight of the tack causes the wheel to stop at the 'open' number; consequently, the operator does not have to 'pay off,' and the 'play' is all profit.

How the Crooked Operator of a Percentage Wheel Takes Advantage of the Law of Gravity to Take Your Money Is Shown in the Side-View Diagram. He Offers to Pay You 10 to 1 if the Wheel Stops at a Number Corresponding to the Number on Which You Place Your Money. To Make a Clean-Up He Deftly Places a Leaded Thumb-Tack Into the Back of the Wheel Opposite a Number That Is Not Being Played.

"One of the most popular games of the type of so-called 'science and skill' is the knife rack, where rows of attractive looking deerfoot knives line the booth. When you pause at his stand, the operator shows you how easy it is to drop a little wooden ring over the handle in order to take away the knife as a prize.

Even if you buy a hundred rings, you never will win. It is absolutely impossible to toss a ring over one of the knife handles from the angle at which you must throw, for the handles have slanting ends, and the knives are turned so that you are throwing the rings at the flat end of the handle that faces you, and not at the point.

"The grifter is a keen practical psychologist. He knows that you come to a carnival to have a good time, and that you are willing to pay for it.

"Take the 'three-pin game.' All you have to do to win at this is to roll a little ball down a miniature bowling alley and knock over three tennins. If you do it, you get a dollar bill. But you never knock down more than two, because the two front pins are so set that the ball passes between them without striking both at the same time. If you get discouraged but look prosperous, the operator displays more of his 'art,' using a confederate known as a 'capper,' or a 'shill' to lure you on. The confederate can make a perfect shot every time, because the operator has set the pins closer together for him.

The swing ball game is a notorious goldmine for the grifter. Here a ten-pin stands on a counter lined with the inevitable flashy prizes. Beside the pin hangs a bowling ball suspended from a frame above. The game is to swing the ball to the right of the pin so that it will knock the pin over on its return swing. Purposely faulty construction renders the frame wobbly, so that the operator has only to lean against it to throw the ball from its course. The pin also is made lopsided and off center to set the game against you.

"To knock a large canvas tom cat from a rack only a few feet away with a ball seems like an easy way to win a prize—but try to do it! The cat leaves the

Machine for Marking Off Safety Zones

A MACHINE for marking pavements with guide lines, such as are commonly used on busy city streets to establish zones and the like, is the original idea of John O. Rhen, of Santa Cruz, Cal. It is a small truck running on three wheels and supporting a solid casting which is pivoted on a tube that extends from side to side of the truck frame. A vertical passage through the middle of the casting provides at its upper end a threaded engagement for the neck of a cylindrical tank which is meant to hold liquid paint.

The paint discharged by gravity from the tank drops through the vertical passage into the above-mentioned horizontal tube, which has a hole in the middle of its upper side to receive the paint. From the tube the paint flows to an outlet cock, by which it is delivered to the bristles of a brush.

The cylindrical tank has a cover. Adjacent to it is a long handle, the lower end of which is supported in the casting, and by means of which the truck is pushed along. Connected to the handle by small steel rings is a long rod with a hook at the upper end. By manipulating this rod the operator can open or close the cock that delivers the paint to the brush.

With the cock open there is a continuous delivery of paint to the brush, and the operator has only to push the truck along in order to mark a line of any length he chooses. Behind the paintbrush is a second brush which carries no paint and serves merely as a smoother. Both brushes are held in sockets at the bottom of the afore-mentioned casting.

As already said, the casting is pivoted. To maintain it in operative position, for painting, a hook is engaged with a notch. When it is desired to discontinue the painting the hook is released and the tank is turned to a vertical position, in which it is secured by inserting the hook into another notch.

When this is done, the pivoted casting is turned forward in such wise as to hold both brushes clear of the ground. The operator can then push his machine along to the next place where a line is to be marked.

A Desk to Foil the Bandit

A DESK of novel construction, meant for the defense of cashiers against bandits, has been newly patented in this country by Israel Kamin, of Toronto, Ontario.

It has a flat top covered with sheet steel, which, being pivoted at both ends, and provided with a weight for the purpose, will instantly turn from the horizontal to the vertical when a bolt is released.

The cashier, in his cage, can be approached only from the front. The hold-up man, suddenly appearing, says, "Hand over what money you've got!" It is the conventional form of procedure.

The cashier, taken by surprise, has nevertheless presence of mind enough to insert the toe of his foot into a stirrup beneath his desk. Slight pressure on the stirrup releases the bolt, and the desk top (which sets inside of the frame of the desk) turns up to the vertical, between the cashier and the robber.

A Floating Toy

A FLOATING toy house that resembles a boat-house in miniature has been patented by a New Yorker, Albert C. Moss. It can be floated on a pond or in the family bathtub, and may be used to house smaller playthings, such as little boats or toy ducks.

It rests upon two hollow metal cylinders which serve the purpose of pontoons, sustaining it upon the surface of the water. The slanting roof can be slid off, and two hinged doors at the front of the house can be opened or shut, being held in closed position by a turn-button.

Thus access to the house is easily obtained through the roof or at the front.

When the Desk Top Turns Up Vertically Its Contents Fall Into a Locked Drawer.

protected at least for the moment against bullets. But that is not all; for the desk top, in changing its position, pulls a cord which fires a pistol through a hole in the desk top.

All of which is likely to be very disconcerting to a robber, who may thereupon promptly take to his heels. At least time has been gained, and a loud alarm—the pistol shot—has been set off.

When the desk top turns up to the vertical, everything on it, money included, drops into a locked drawer at the bottom.

Air Cushions for Motor Car Seats

TO insure still more comfortable riding, pneumatic cushions are now provided for motor cars. If the tires absorb nine-tenths of the vibration, one-tenth is left. And if the air cushions absorb nine-tenths of this residuum, only one hundredth of the original is left.

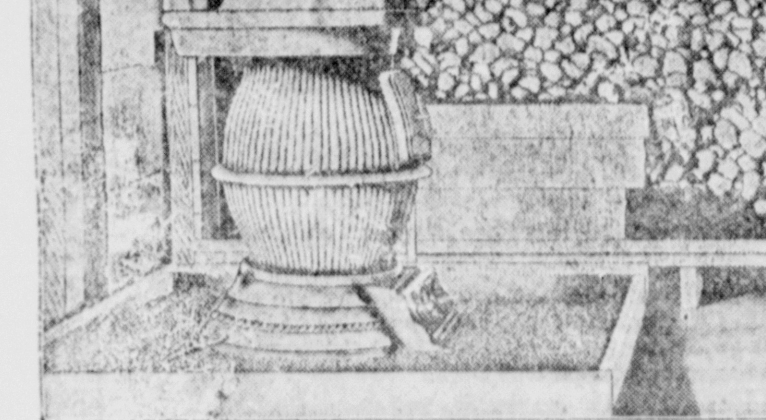

The cushions have a number of pillars or columns of fabric built into them in such a manner that the top side and the bottom side are attached in a flexible manner. These prevent the great side-wise displacement of the contained air. They are equipped with valves which permit quick inflation.

Any one who has used an air mattress knows how it gives a feeling of skidding and slewing around in space. The mattress is, of course, never completely inflated. If it were, it would cease to be an air mattress, in a sense, for the chief value of this invention lies in the fact that when a little less than fully inflated it permits the user to sink down into it, thereby distributing his weight over a large area of support. But if you were to sit on such a loose-topped air cushion in a moving car you would do an auto-

Warming Up the Cold Potato

MOST people think they know all there is to be known about potatoes. But they don't. For instance, how about keeping the potato warm in winter?

The best potatoes that come to market are grown in cold regions—in the highlands of Colorado, in Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and in the northern part of Maine. Glance at the map, and you will see that northern Maine sticks 'way up into Canada. In Aroostook County, which is bigger than some New England States, great quantities of potatoes are grown.

The potatoes produced in those cold latitudes must be shipped to market at intervals through the winter, in quantities to meet current demand. To keep them from freezing, where temperatures often drop to 40 degrees below zero and lower, is a vital problem.

This is accomplished by storing them in artificially-heated buildings conveniently near to the railroads, or sometimes in great pits underground.

A siphon is now offered to solve the problem of getting the cream off the top of the milk in the bottle. The telescope arm enables it to be "set" to the line between the cream and the milk, or to any other desired point. If inserted in the bottle according to directions it is self-starting; and it drains automatically when the bottle is drained to the level at which the siphon has been inserted.

What the Inventors Are Doing

AN optical strain gauge, devised by the experts of the U. S. Bureau of Standards, will measure accurately to the one two-hundred-fifty-thousandth part of an inch. It may be used for determining the stretch of steel or other materials under load. The gauge itself has two knife edges, which are set into the material under test. To the movable knife edge is attached a mirror, which reflects back to the eye-piece the image of an illuminated mark contained in the case. The image of this mark is projected on the scale in the eye-piece and, before the load is applied, the gauge is adjusted to make this mark coincide with the zero on the scale. Thereafter the scale reads directly the extension of the material to which the gauge is fastened.

measurements taken largely depends upon the precision with which the glass is cut and its quality.

One of the latest devices for increasing the joy of motor-boating is the electric capstan. The power for the device is furnished by a fractional horse-power motor which is geared to the scrubbing drum. All gearing is in oil and the parts open to the weather are constructed of bronze. Control of the motor is through a button installed in the deck. The motor will operate from the lighting storage batteries. This device is also adapted for chain cables.

Playing Baseball Indoors

A NOVEL and ingenious contrivance for playing baseball indoors has been patented by a Brooklyn man, Frank O. Degenhardt.

A wooden image, cut out "in the flat," and representing a catcher with an umpire standing behind him, size of life, has a number of round knobs or buttons distributed over it. The aim of the player is to hit with a thrown baseball one or another of these knobs.

When he hits one of the knobs the impact depresses a spring, thereby releasing a rod (at the rear of the image) of the motor-boating and sailing. Wood makes surf-boards and diving-boards. It goes into shells, slides, and oars for rowing, ping-pong and mah-long sets, and in tough, sturdy hockey sticks. The Result of the Play Is Indicated When the Ball Hits One of the Knobs on the Catcher's Breast.

Forests Consumed in Making Articles of Sport

WOOD is such a vital necessity in practically every athletic pastime that forests of lumber are consumed in the making of sporting goods. For example, the manufacture of skis, billiard cues, snow-shoes, tennis rackets, baseball bats, ten-pins and other sporting utensils consume every year about twenty-five million feet of wood coming from more than thirty varieties of trees, according to Richard W. Westwood in Nature Magazine.

Sluggers of the baseball world demand that their bats be made of ash, though in somewhat less exacting circles willow is sometimes used. The young American scrub team, playing in the back lots, is likely to content itself with bats of beach, maple or elm.

Nowhere is the quality of wood of more vital importance than in the golf stick. The long, slim shaft must be tough, yet elastic, to withstand the powerful, sweeping blow of the long drive. The best quality of hickory has no rival for this purpose. The wooden head of the golf stick, on the other hand, must be chosen for its ability to withstand the shock of a blow without splitting or splintering. Persimmon and dogwood are rivals here, with maple, beech and birch sometimes being used also.

The tennis racket rim is usually of ash or hickory; elm gives as good service but does not present such a fine finish. The handle is made of two woods, the darker being rosewood, walnut, mahogany or cherry, and the lighter being some wood also light in weight. The lacrosse stick is made of hickory.

The best fishing poles are usually of bamboo; bird decoys are made of red cedar; and canoes involve combinations of black walnut, butternut, sycamore, ash, cherry, cedar, sassafras and birchbark. In the gymnasium the Indian clubs and dumbbells come from the heavy sugar maple wood, or sometimes the birch or beech. Spruce is found in the horizontal bars, yellow pine in the climbing poles, elm or ash in the trapeze, and hickory in the swinging rings. Elm, ash or hickory, again, are used in making snow-shoes, skis

Mysterious Smith Co. and Mme. Olga At Strand Theatre

The Strand theatre was packed Monday night to witness the opening performance of the Mysterious Smith Co. and Mme. Olga, the mind reader and to say the audience was pleased is putting it mild. This is without doubt the biggest and best production of the kind that has ever played this city and those failing to see it this week will indeed miss a rare treat. A solid car load of equipment is carried and also a large company of able assistants and Mysterious Smith does surely bring back the days of the Great Herman with his wonderful illusions.

Those going to the theatre expecting to see old worn-out magic were disappointed, for the production is up-to-the-minute to the smallest detail and is truly an entertainment well worth while.

The work of Mme. Olga is indeed clever and did prove that she is distinctly in a class by herself in this particular line of work and does convince the most skeptical.

On Thursday afternoon Mme. Olga will give a special matinee for ladies only—at this performance no men or boys will be admitted.

It is expected that all the ladies will take advantage of this opportunity to ask their very private questions.

Duelling Still Popular Pastime in Vienna; 57 In One Week

VIENNA—The duelling craze still grips this country.

Fifty-seven duels were fought in one week alone in Vienna recently, while there are hundreds of duels pending in the Bucharest and other cities, mostly between army officers and civilians.

One of the most prominent and habitual duellists, Lieutenant-Colonel Paul Proust, was recently for the first time defeated and disabled.

Proust's method was to send long letters to individuals full of insults hoping that the reply would be a challenge to a duel. As a result of his latest encounter, however, he has been compelled to cancel all his duelling engagements for the fall "season."

THIS HEALING CREAM WILL STOP CATARRH

If your nostrils are clogged and your head stuffed because of catarrh or a cold, get Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this pure, antiseptic, germ destroying cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head and membranes. Instant relief.

How good it feels. Your head is clear. Your nostrils are open. You breathe freely. No more hawking or snuffling. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up, choked up and miserable. Relief is sure.

"POLLY PREFERRED," FAMOUS COMEDY, AT THE CERAMIC THEATRE WEDNESDAY

Chicago Stock Company Scores Another Hit in Avery Hopwood's Farce, "The Alarm Clock"—"Twin Beds" Here Thursday.

If you like to laugh and spend one of the most enjoyable evenings imaginable, by all means don't miss one or more of the Chicago Stock Company's performances at the Ceramic. Tuesday evening before a large audience, they presented Avery Hopwood's unusually clever farce "The Alarm Clock." It was advertised as a tale of laughter and that is exactly what it was. Like the initial performance, it was elaborately staged and the various artists with the attraction splendidly acquitted themselves in their roles.

Wednesday evening, the players will be seen in Guy Bolton's famous comedy of the "movies," "Polly Preferred," as played at the Little Theater in New York for two solid years. It shows how movie actresses are created and abounds with Hollywood thrills. A feature of the production is the gorgeous costuming and the unusual staging of an exact replica of the movie studio in full operation.

Thursday afternoon and evening comes the ever popular "Twin Beds," the comedy the critics said was the funniest play in the English language—a show that millions have actually bought seats to see. In every city, the Chicago players have appeared in "Twin Beds" in this season hundreds have been turned away.

The only drama in the company's list is scheduled for Friday evening. It is a dramatization of F. Marion Crawford's soul-stirring romance, "The White Sister." It is not a religious play in any way but a gripping drama that ranks with the finest productions the stage has ever offered.

The company's engagement will be concluded Saturday with two performances of Avery Hopwood's brilliant comedy, "Getting Gertie's Garter." Seats are now on sale for all evening performances and for the matinees Thursday and Saturday.

Notes for Women

A new antiseptic has been discovered that is four times as powerful as Carbolic Acid.

It is much more powerful than bichloride of mercury.

Yet it is harmless that one can drink it and so mild in its action that it is a healthful wash for the most delicate membrane.

Chemists say it will take the place of harsh poisonous germ killers. By getting a 60-cent bottle of Kojene at Carnahan's Drug Store or Jesse D. Holloway or any good druggist women can learn much of personal hygiene that will be of benefit to them.

Modern Woodmen Plan Camp on 20-Acre Tract on Y. & O.

Ground has been broken for a summer camp and recreation center, occupying a 20-acre tract of land in St. Clair township near Stop 55 on the Lincoln Highway and Y. & O. road.

Owned and operated by members of Valley Camp No. 6719, will be known as Camp Rest. For the present time it will consist of a dancing pavilion, 53x60 feet, and 10 cottages, of two, three and four rooms each. An artificial lake will be constructed next summer. The camp will represent an investment of approximately $50,000.

Contract for the dancing pavilion and summer cottages has been awarded to the firm of T. S. Carr and J. J. Turner. It is the intentions of the promoters of the resort to conduct dances each week, winter and summer, as soon as the dancing pavilion is completed. The dance hall is being erected so as to overlook the proposed artificial lake which will be constructed by damming up one end of a ravine. This lake will provide bathing and boating privileges.

Why America Must Have More Paved Highways

Almost every section of the United States is confronted by a traffic problem.

Month by month this problem is becoming more and more serious.

Hundreds of cars pass a given point every hour on many of our state and county roads. Down-town city streets are jammed with traffic.

Think, too, how narrow many of our roads are, and how comparatively few paved highways there are in proportion to the steadily increasing number of cars.

If the motor vehicle is to continue giving the economic service of which it is capable, we must have more Concrete highways and widen those near large centers of population.

Every citizen should discuss highway needs of his community with his local authorities.

Your highway officials will do their part if given your support.

Why postpone meeting this pressing need?

An early start means early relief.

"A feller called you up a while ago," said Carson, still bright-eyed with interest but pretending that that interest had to do with the new wall telephone recently installed. "Sandy Weaver, it was. Said—"

"What did he want," demanded Lee, swinging suddenly on Carson, his coat balled up in his hand and hurled viciously under a bunk.

"Wasn't I telling you?" Carson grunted. "What's eating you, Bud? You ac' mighty suspicious, like a man that had swallered poison or else was coming down with the yellor jaundice or else was took sudden and powerful bad with love. They all treats a man similar—"

"D—n it," growled Lee irritably, "can't you tell me what Weaver said?"

"Said, call him up, read pronto," replied Carson cheerfully. "Say, Bud, where in heck did you get that outfit? By cripes, if I had a regalia like that I'd be riding herd in 'em ev'ry Sunday! On the square now—"

But Lee wasn't listening to him and Carson knew it. He had gone quickly to the telephone, had rung the one bell for "Central," and a moment later was speaking with Sandy Weaver, of the Golden Spur saloon. Carson sucked at his pipe and kept his eyes on Lee's face.

The ensuing conversation, only one side of which came to Carson, was brief. Most of the talking was done by Sandy Weaver. Lee asked three questions; the third a simple:

"Sure of it, Sandy?"

Then he jammed the receiver back upon its hook, and with no remark continued his hurried dressing. When he had come in, his face had been flushed, now it was suddenly red, the hot red of rage. His eyes, when they met Carson's once, were stern, bright with the same quick anger. When he had drawn on his working garb and stuffed his trousers into his boots, he went to his bunk and tossed back the blanket. From the straw mattress he took a heavy, old-style Colt revolver. Carson, still watching him, saw him spin the cylinder, slip a box of fresh cartridges into his pocket and turn to the door.

"Riding, Bud?" He got to his feet, stuffed his pipe into his pocket and reached for his hat. "Care if I mosey along?"

"What for?" asked Lee curtly.

"Oh, h—l, what's the use being a hawg?" Carson grumbled deep down in his brown throat. "If you're on your way to little ol' Rocky hunting trouble, if they's going to be shooting fun, why can't you let me in on it?"

Lee stood a moment framed in the doorway, frowning down at Carson. Then he turned on his heel and went out, saying coolly over his shoulder:

"Come on if you want to. Quinnton's in town."

As their horses' hoofs hammered the winding road for the forty miles into Rocky Bend the two riders were for the most part silent. All of the explanation which Lee had to give, or cared to give, was summed up in the brief words: "Quinnton's in town."

To Judith, Lee had said that night they fought together at the Upper End that he had recognized Quinnton's voice; "I played poker with that voice not four months ago." That he had ample reason to remember the man as well, he had not gone on to mention. But Carson knew.

Carson had sat at Lee's left hand that night, across the table from Chris Quinnton, and had seen the look of naked hatred in two pairs of eyes when Lee had risen to his feet and coolly branded Quinnton as a crook and a card shark. For a little the two men had glared at each other, their muscles corded and ready, their eyes alert and suspicious, their hands close to their pockets. Then Quinnton had sneered in that evil voice of his: "You got the drop on me this time. Lookout for the next." He, too, had risen and with Lee's eyes hard upon him had gone out of the room. And Carson had been disappointed in a fight. But now—now that Bud Lee in this mood was going straight to Rocky Bend and Quinnton, Carson filled his deep lungs with a sigh of satisfaction. Life had grown dull here of late; there wasn't a fresh scar on his battered body.

Though the railroad had at last slipped through it, Rocky Bend was still a bad little town and proud of its badness. To the northeast lay the big timber tracts into which the Western Lumber company was tearing its destructive way; only nine miles due west were the Rock Creek mines, running full blast; on the other sides it was surrounded by cattle ranges, where a lusty brood of young untamed devils were constrained to give themselves soberly to their work during the long, dusty days. But at night, it was on a Saturday evening, there came into Rocky Bend from lumber camps, mines and cow outfits a crowd of men whose blood ran red and turbulent, seeking a game of cards, a "whirl at the wheel," a night of drinking or any other amusement which fate might vouchsafe them. Good men and bad, they were all hard men and quick. Otherwise they would not have come into Rocky Bend at all.

Lee and Carson riding out of the darkness into the dim light of the first straggling street-lamps, passed swiftly between the rows of weather-boarded shacks and headed toward the Golden Spur saloon.

Though the hour was late there were many saddle-ponies standing with drooping heads here and there along the board sidewalks, from more than one barroom came the gay ragtime of an automatic piano or the scrape and scream of a fiddle. Men lounged up and down the street, smoking, calling to one another, turning in here or there to have a drink or watch a game.

The two newcomers, watching each man or group of men, rode on slowly until they came to the building on whose false front was a gigantic spur in yellow paint. Here they dismounted, tied their horses, and went in. Carson, with a quick eye toward preparedness for what might lie on the cards, looked for Lee's gun. It wasn't in his pocket; it wasn't in his wrist-band, ready to hand. It wasn't anywhere that Carson could see. At the door he whispered warningly:

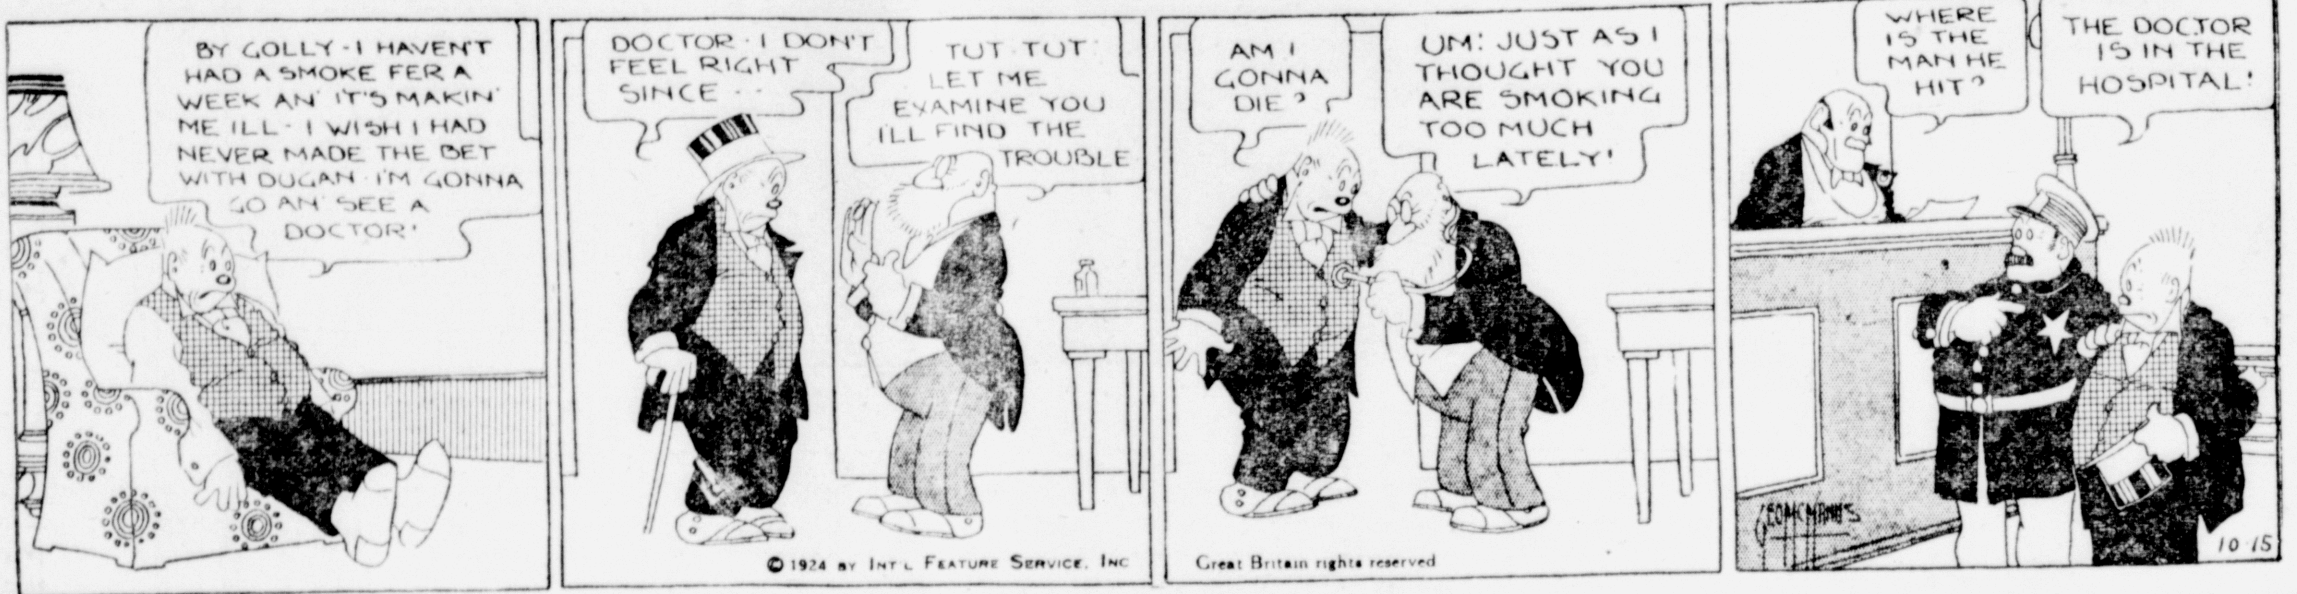

"Better be ready, Bud. Ain't los' your gun, have you?"

"What for?" asked Lee curtly.

"Oh, h—l, what's the use being a hawg?" Carson grumbled deep down in his brown throat. "If you're on your way to little ol' Rocky hunting trouble, if they're going to be shooting fun, why can't you let me in on it?"

Lee stood a moment framed in the doorway, frowning down at Carson. Then he turned on his heel and went out, saying coolly over his shoulder:

"Come on if you want to. Quinlon's in town."

As their horses' hoofs hammered the winding road for the forty miles into Rocky Bend the two riders were for the most part silent. All of the explanation which Lee had to give, or cared to give, was summed up in the brief words: "Quinlon's in town."

To Judith, Lee had said that night they fought together at the Upper End that he had recognized Quinlon's voice; "I played poker with that voice not four months ago." That he had had ample reason to remember the man as well, he had not gone on to mention. But Carson knew.

Carson had sat at Lee's left hand that night, across the table from Chris Quinlon, and had seen the look of naked hatred in two pairs of eyes when Lee had risen to his feet and coolly branded Quinlon as a crook and a card shark. For a little the two men had glared at each other, their muscles corded and ready, their eyes alert and suspicious, their hands close to their pockets. Then Quinlon had sneered in that evil voice of his: "You got the drop on me this time. Lookout for the next." He, too, had risen and with Lee's eyes hard upon him had gone out of the room. And Carson had been disappointed in a fight. But now—now that Bud Lee in this mood was going straight to Rocky Bend and Quinlon, Carson filled his deep lungs with a sigh of satisfaction. Life had grown dull here of late; there wasn't a fresh scar on his battered brow. Though the railroad had at last slipped through it, Rocky Bend was still a bad little town and proud of its badness. To the northeast lay the big timber tracts into which the Western Lumber company was tearing its destructive way; only nine miles due west were the Rock Creek mines, running full blast; on the other sides it was surrounded by cattle ranges, where a lusty brood of young untamed devils were constrained to give themselves soberly to their work during the long, dusty days. But at night, 31 ways on a Saturday evening, there came into Rocky Bend from lumber camps, mines and cow outfits a crowd of men whose blood ran red and turbulent, seeking a game of cards, a "whirl at the wheel," a night of drinking or any other amusement which fate might vouchsafe them. Good men and bad, they were all hard men and quick. Otherwise they would not have come into Rocky Bend at all.

Lee and Carson riding out of the darkness into the dim light of the first straggling street-lamps, passed swiftly between the rows of weather-boarded shacks and headed toward the Golden Spur saloon. Though the hour was late there were many saddle-poles standing with drooping heads here and there along the board sidewalks; from more than one barroom came the gay rattle of an automatic piano or the scrape and scream of a fiddle. Men lounged up and down the street, smoking, calling to one another, turning in here or there to have a drink or watch a game.

The two newcomers, watching each man or group of men, rode on slowly until they came to the building on whose false front was a gigantic spur in yellow paint. Here they dismounted, tied their horses, and went in. Carson, with a quick eye toward preparedness for what might lie on the cards, looked for Lee's gun. It wasn't in his pocket. It wasn't in his wrist-band, ready to hand. It wasn't anywhere that Carson could see. At the door he whispered warningly:

"Better be ready, Bud. Ain't lost your gun, have you?"

BREAKS UP ICE

Saves Life and Property,
Does Wartime Duty.

WASHINGTON—In the spectacular warfare of the United States Coast Guard against the tidal wave of liquor that has flooded the shores of the country since the prohibition amendment went into effect, eight has been almost lost of a function of this romantic arm of the naval service.

That function comprises the rendering of assistance to vessels in distress and the saving of life and maritime property.

From end to end of the United States' 10,000 miles of coastline vessels and small boats of the Coast Guard patrol day and night watching and waiting for SOS signals of distress that they may fly to the assistance of those in trouble on the seas. While charged with the enforcement of the Customs laws, which means that the Coast Guard has the duty of trying to stem the tide of smuggled liquors, officials of the service are much prouder of their accomplishments in life-saving work.

Other Duties.

Included in other duties are the following: The destruction and removal of wrecks, derelicts and other floating dangers to navigation.

Extending medical aid to American vessels engaged in deep-sea fishing. Operating as a part of the navy in time of war, or when the President may direct.

Enforcement of laws relating to quarantine and neutrality. Suppression of mutinies on merchant vessels.

Enforcement of laws to provide for safety of life on navigable waters during regattas and marine parades.

Protection of game and the seal and other fisheries of Alaska.

International Ice Patrol in the vicinity of the Grand Banks off Newfoundland. President Coolidge will issue an executive order probably next month, making an official assignment of the Coast Guard cutters to the duty of protection of navigation in December, January and February, the danger months for coastwise shipping. Annually the President makes this assignment of duty.

Bad Winter Looms.

Prospects of a bitter winter have led the Coast Guard officials to start unusual preparations for their life-saving work off the northeastern coast this year.

Heavy cruising cutters are under repair, and smaller boats are being equipped to take part in the winter's battle against icebergs, gales, ice-bound ports and other eventualities of the cold months, which annually take their toll of lives and property.

Two cutters—the Tampa and the Modoc—the pride of the Coast Guard fleet, are expected to be assigned to the International Ice Patrol to keep trans-Atlantic shipping lanes informed of the whereabouts of icebergs. These ships are armed with heavy guns and other weapons to blast menacing mountains of ice to splinters.

Coast Guard officials anticipate one of the severest winters since 1917. They said one of their heavy duties free from ice of the harbors of cities along the Maine coast and harbors of islands off the Maine shore.

Guard Fishing.

These islands, it was stated, are the dwelling places of thousands of fishermen, who furnish one of the big food supplies to the Eastern cities. Dependent almost entirely upon the mainland for food and fuel it is essential for the islanders that the harbors be kept open in order that provision ships may enter.

Last winter hundreds of telegrams were received by the Coast Guard from officials of Maine urging that cutters be sent to break up the ice in harbors. Two vessels were badly damaged in this work.

It was expected that the Coast Guard would endeavor to have included in its annual appropriation provision for the building of a regular ice breaking ship regarded as necessary, in view of the class of work the organization is called upon to perform.

Equipment of the Coast Guard is being improved rapidly as the result of funds provided by the last Congress. Hundreds of small but fast launches are under construction or already in service, principally for use in fighting the illicit rum traffic.

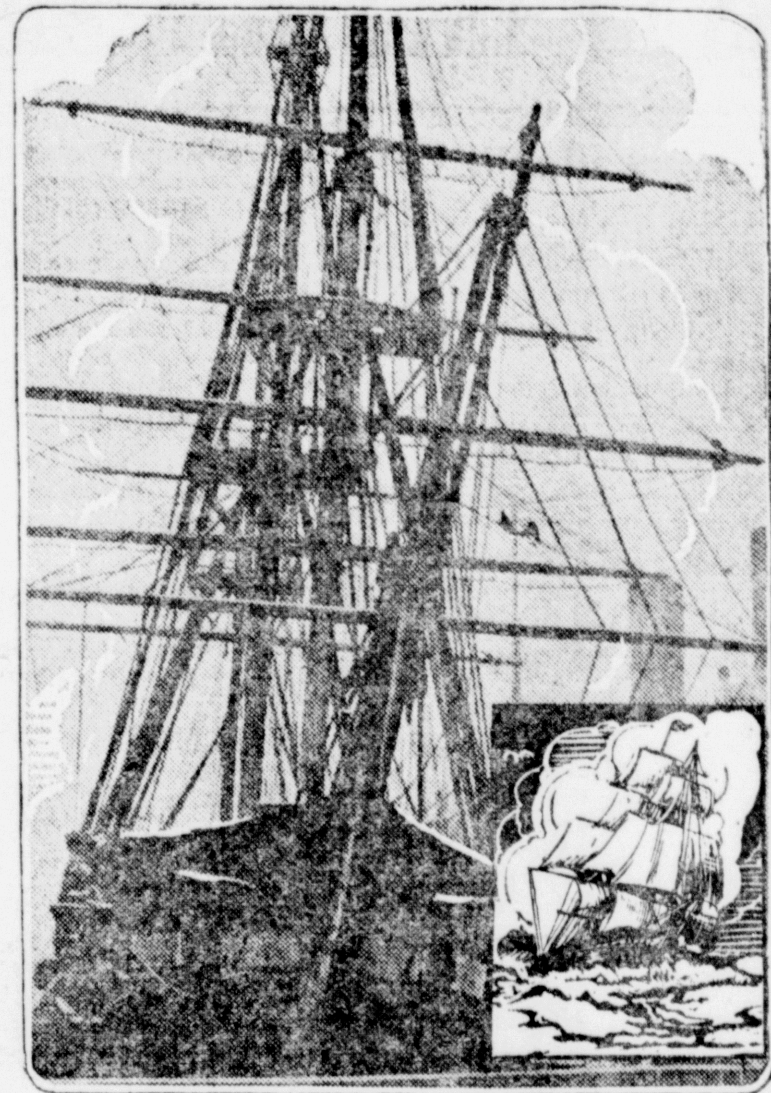

The heavier equipment of the Coast Guard, comprising large cutters similar in size to the Mayflower, the Presidential yacht, but equipped for more serious duties, is said to be in bad repair. Considerable money will be required to build new cutters and improve those already in use.

Among the vessels suffering most severely in the last year was the famous cutter Bear.

Eczema

Oh! The joy of a peaceful, restful night. What a wonderful "up and going" feeling follows such a night of undisturbed slumber.

Oh! What tortures—what agony—what despair—goes with the nights where eczema and other skin diseases hold power and drive away rest and peaceful slumber. For under the cover of darkness like crafty beings of the underworld these eruptions work their most serious havoc.

S.S.S. is the established conqueror of these annoying skin diseases. S.S.S. drives these ever disturbing elements from your system—elements that carry in their wake—lack of energy—undermining health! You may try in vain to get rid of them by using salves, lotions, washes, all to no purpose. You can't do it that way—the seat of the trouble lies deeper—impure blood trying to throw off poisons through the tender skin.

S.S.S. purifies the blood. It aids Nature in creating new red-blood-cells by the million! Blood-cells that send new rich blood coursing through your system. Red blood that drives away eczema—drives away pimples, blackheads, boils and rheumatism, too. An increase in red-blood-cells means added strength, added vitality and renewed vigor. Because the medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable, it may be taken with perfect safety. Start taking S.S.S. today and watch it rout that annoying, skin destroying, health undermining army that holds your system in its grasp! Learn again what it means to enjoy peaceful, restful nights of slumber.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Milk Wagon Horse Unbeaten in Races Hanging up Records

REGINA, Sask.—From milk-wagon nag to king of the western turf in one year. That is the record of Tony Silvester, the seven-year-old speeder of the Vassar & Taylor stable here, who has hung up a record as Saskatchewan's unbeaten race horse.

A year ago Tony, a homely gelding trotted soberly through Regina's alleys, dragging the morning milk.

Though he came of a racing strain, sired by Silvester J., he gave no evidence, either in appearance or gait, that he might be a money winner on the track.

This spring, however, Tony's owner decided to give the horse a chance. He took him off the milk route and put him in training for six weeks. His debut among the blue bloods of the Saskatchewan track was not impressive. His first race was a mile, and he trailed badly behind in the first two heats. Then his racing blood began to tell, and Tony romped home in the lead for the three final heats. He duplicated his success in his next performance, and since then he has been winning regularly.

Now Tony tilts his equine nose whenever a milk wagon crosses his path. His owner believes he will soon be champion of Western Canada.

RHEUMATIC PAINS HAVE ALL GONE

Relief Quickly Follows the Use of Ka-di-ok After Years of Suffering.

MRS. JAMES WRIGHT.

Mrs. James Wright, a resident of Adamston, W. Va., a suburb of Clarksburg, in telling her experience with the new herbal remedy to the Ka-di-ok representatives said:

"I suffered for years with rheumatism and never had the faintest idea that I could ever get well as I had taken nearly every remedy I ever heard of but without getting rid of it. A few weeks ago my husband brought me a bottle of Ka-di-ok and urged me to try it and see if it would not help me. At that time I was suffering from rheumatism so bad that I had to spend a great deal of the time in bed as my limbs were all swollen and I could hardly stand on my feet. To see me today one would never realize the condition I was in at that time. The swelling and pains in my limbs have all passed away and I am feeling like a new woman. I eat and sleep and get around about as well as any woman of my age. Ka-di-ok is a wonderful remedy and everybody ought to know about it. I have taken nine bottles of Ka-di-ok and they have been worth their weight in gold to me."

Ka-di-ok can be obtained in East Liverpool at the Mathews Cut Rate Medicine Store, 129 West 6th street.

BABIES GIVEN HEALTH TEST

Large Number Examined at Clinic Held in M. E. Church.

Nearly 50 babies under the age of one year were given a thorough examination at a baby clinic held in the lecture room of the Lisbon Methodist Episcopal church Tuesday, and this work was followed by the regular meeting of the Columbiana County Medical Society.

"The clinic is the most successful of its kind ever held in Columbiana county," declared Dr. T. T. Church of Salem, County Health Commissioner under whose direction the clinic was arranged.

"It is bound to be productive of excellent results, and if the mothers will only follow the suggestions that have been made to her healthier children will result, and the county will be the gainer in future years. We can make suggestions to parents in the care of their little ones, but it is up to the mothers to follow these suggestions after they have had their children examined if results are to be obtained, and I feel confident that great results will follow this clinic," Dr. Church concluded.

Early Tuesday morning babies were taken to the clinic, and until late in the afternoon others followed.

The children were first taken in a room and undressed. A warm blanket was then placed about the tiny forms, and the mothers were given a number as the children were examined in the turn they were prepared. In due time they were taken into another room, and minus blanket, the tots were placed in a scale and weighed and their height recorded. Again the warm blanket was wrapped about them, and the mothers were to await their turn to be called into another room.

In this last room they were laid on a table, and Dr. R. S. Friedley, of Akron made a thorough physical examination of the babe. A printed card form was filled out as this work was in progress by Miss Katherine Foreman, a trained nurse, and this card was given the mother as she emerged from the examination room with her baby.

After the baby was again clothed, the mother took her child before Miss Uarda Fain, who after reading the prepared chart made suggestions to the mother as to what nutrition care should be given the child.

The chart which was filled before the baby was weighed; gave a complete history of the child, which included its name, date of its parents, home address, age, sex, name of family and whether or not the birth had been registered as the law requires.

Then follows a history of the illness of the child, and the nature of such illness. Then came the record of infancy, the weight at birth, age when weaned and similar data, and also the habits of the tot, as to its manner of sleeping, appetite, and whether it has frequent colds and coughs. All of these questions and answers thereto were given by the parent, and then 44 questions were filled in by the examining physician.

Children between the ages of one and six years were examined Wednesday under the same methods.

GRANTED LEAVE TO AMEND PETITIONS

Judge James G. Moore has granted A. J. Evans, Cloyd Boring and Leslie J. Michaels of Wellsville and John Elford of St. Clair township, leave to file amended petitions in their cases against James C. Davis, former Director General of the United States Railroad Administration.

The several actions were filed as claims for additional compensation while the plaintiffs were employed by the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad company, at Wellsville during the war period.

Cochran and Crawford of East Liverpool and Anderson and Lamb of Youngstown are representing the plaintiffs, while the defense is represented by Billingsley & Moore of Lisbon and W. H. Kinsey.

ALIMONY SOUGHT IN COURT ACTION

Alimony is sought in a petition filed in common pleas court by Attorney W. S. Stevenson of East Liverpool in behalf of Mrs. Elizabeth Meek against her husband William Meek.

MACHINIST GIVEN WORKHOUSE TERM

When Preston Askan, a machinist of Toledo, was on trial before Judge Lodge Riddle in juvenile court on a charge of non support, he told the court that he had been unable to secure employment, and that he was living "off his parents."

His wife, who was formerly Mary Frantz of Salem was in court with her nine-months old baby.

The grand jury last January indicted Askan for abandonment.

"Let's see your hands," the court said to the defendant.

"By the looks of them you have been working right along," the court said.

Askan was found guilty and sentenced to six months in the Canton Workhouse. His counsel Attorney Walter W. Beck filed bond for a stay of execution, and the case will now go to Common Pleas court.

To File Answer.

In the cases of Sable Bros., against the Coll Preserving Co., of East Palestine, wherein the recovery of a claim of $707 is sought, and John L. Gaudin against the same interest, and wherein judgment for $1,225 is sought, the court has granted the defendant company leave to file its answer by Nov. 1. Plaintiffs in both cases are represented by Billingsley & Moore of Lisbon, while L. M. Kyes of East Palestine is counsel for the defendant company.

GRANTED LEAVE TO AMEND PETITIONS

Judge James G. Moore has granted A. J. Evans, Clold Boring and Leslie J. Michaels, et al., and John Elford of St. Clair township, leave to file amended petitions in their cases against James C. Davis, former Director General of the United States Railroad Administration.

The several actions were filed as claims for additional compensation while the plaintiffs were employed by the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad company, at Wadsworth during the war period.

Cochran and Crawford of East Liverpool and Anderson and Lamb of Youngstown are representing the plaintiffs, while the defense is represented by Billingsley & Moore of Lisbon and W. H. Kinsey.

ALIMONY SOUGHT IN COURT ACTION

Alimony is sought in a petition filed in common pleas court by Attorney W. S. Stevenson of East Liverpool in behalf of Mrs. Elizabeth Meek against her husband William Meek.

The petition recites that the plaintiff is 60 years of age, and that she became the wife of Meek at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 29, 1907, she also sets forth that at the time of their marriage Meek had $2,000, and that he spent the greater portion of it. She also claims that Meek is an able-bodied man and capable of supporting her. The defendant is said to reside at 321 Walnut street, East Liverpool.

Hearing Continued.

An order of court has been entered that the hearing in the divorce case of Mary Helen Watkins against Richard Watkins be continued until after further notice. The plaintiff is represented by Attorney Charles Boyd and the action was filed in common pleas court Aug. 9, 1923.

MACHINIST GIVEN WORKHOUSE TERM

When Preston Askan, a machinist of Toledo, was on trial before Judge Lodge Riddle in Juvenile court on a charge of non support, he told the court that he had been unable to secure employment, and that he was living "off his parents."

DODGE BROTHERS TYPE-B SEDAN

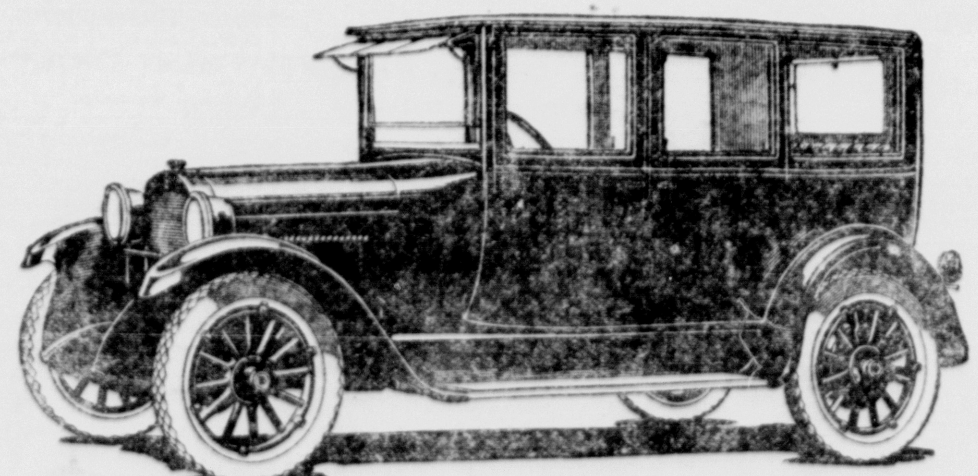

This car is now driven by a great many people who never before owned, and never intended to own a closed car.

It is driven daily over roads that heretofore were considered too rough and too heavy for anything except the sturdiest open cars.

As a matter of fact, the Type-B Sedan is as sturdy as an open car, and was built by Dodge Brothers for the same identical kind of service.

The price is $1250 f. o. b. Detroit—$1355 delivered.

 Honey Ball Melons.
 Cream Noodles on Casserole.
 Cinnamon Toast.
Dinner.
 Veal Roast, "Oven Fried Potatoes"
 Molded Egg Salad.
 Sliced Tomatoes.

 Graham Surprises.

TODAY'S RECIPES.
Creole Noodles—Two cups boiled noodles, one and one-half tablespoons butter, one cup canned tomato soup, butter, one cup diced celery, one-quarter cup red and green peppers, salt, pepper, parsley for garnish. Into a buttered casserole heap the noodles to which all the ingredients have been added except the butter and parsley. Shave butter on top, for this helps brown the mixture. Bake in hot oven fifteen minutes. Garnish and serve.

Oven Fried Potatoes—Scrub small potatoes thoroughly. Slice very thin with skins on. Put them in a shallow tin. Season with salt and pepper and sprinkle butter liberally. Bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes. Turn occasionally. These have all the savory taste as well as the appearance of fried potatoes—but are more digestible.

Graham Surprises—Spread your favorite chocolate frosting between graham crackers and serve with fruit gelatine.

Mustard Pickle—Scold two quarts of small cucumbers, two quarts of button onions, two quarts of cauliflower flowerets and a dozen small, sweet peppers that have been heated in the oven until they may be peeled easily in salted water. Put into the preserve kettle three and a half quarts of vinegar. Blend together one and a half pounds of sugar, a half cup of sifted flour, one ounce of ground turmeric, half a pound of ground mustard and a level teaspoon of curry powder. Stir this mixture to a smooth paste with a cup or a little more of vinegar. When the vinegar in the kettle is hot stir in the paste and keep stirring until it is all well blended. Boil these ingredients five minutes, then add the vegetables and cook gently for one hour, stirring frequently and skimming once. When the liquid is rich and creamy like cold honey, remove it from the fire and bottle and seal it. Two full weeks are required for the pickles to flavor thoroughly, and they are then ready for use.

SUGGESTION.
 To make shoe and hose pockets take a piece of unbleached muslin thirty-four inches long, and twenty-six inches wide. Another piece twelve inches by twenty-six inches wide. Bind top edge, set one inch from top of longer piece, turn up width of seam and stitch twice across. Bind the lower edge and turn up twelve inches for pocket. Bind all around, any color, red is pretty. Divide the lower part in two pockets; the upper in three, stitching the binding laid flat between pockets. Applique stockings cut from brown cloth on one of the upper pockets, and double shoe on one of the lower pockets. You can take patterns from catalog for shoe. A smaller pocket may be made for rubber overshoes. Tack on the inside of clothes closed door with upholstering tacks, you will find them very handy and convenient. Can be laundered easily.

To Abandon Plant.
 ELYRIA.—The million dollar local plant of the Wallys Overland company will be abandoned, according to an announcement of the management. All surplus stock and equipment here will be sold at public auction on October 21 and 22. A similar sale of obsolete and surplus material will be held at Toledo on October 23 and 24. The local plant at one time employed 1,500 persons, but when the greater part of the plant was moved to Pontiac, Mich., the force was reduced to 24. Some manufacturing concern is expected to lease or purchase the large factory building here.

MATHEMATICS.

The ability to measure accurately, to analyze correctly, and to compare intelligently, forms the very foundation of success. There is perhaps no other science which tends to develop these qualities so much as mathematics. The value of mathematics is recognized by every one engaged in any of the trades or in the engineering professions. Those who expect to attain success in these lines understand that mathematics is a necessary part of their training, and it is just as true that those who would succeed in commerce, business, politics or any other walk of life, will find a thorough training in arithmetic almost indispensable in developing their ability to think clearly, to understand conditions thoroughly and to act wisely.

For the convenience of the students who will take this course, two groups will be arranged; one for those who desire instruction in the elementary principles of arithmetic, and the other for more advanced students. The course has been arranged so that the necessary instruction is set forth in the briefest possible way, and the text kept close to everyday affairs. The average person understands more of arithmetic than they can do. Their knowledge is beyond the extent of their skill in accurate and rapid computing. They need reviews of the fundamental operations and advanced instruction in percentage, measurements, interest, etc.

The purpose of the course is to present lessons adapted to the age, attainments and practical experience of those who will make up the group.

Full information may be obtained upon request.

LAZY PEOPLE ARE OFTEN TO BE PITIED

You know somebody, maybe a man or a woman, who seems to you to be just lazy. He or she will yawn over work; stop frequently and gaze into space, apparently having great difficulty concentrating on the matter in hand. Such people are often more to be pitied than to be blamed, for in their ignorance of the laws of health they are permitting their bodies to be slowly poisoned. Whenever your energy flags, when you can't keep at work, look for the trouble in auto-intoxication, that slow creeping poison that comes from stagnation in your liver, constipation and general sluggishness. Slowly the blood is absorbing the products of the fermentation in the body. Lazy people are generally poisoned people. They can easily overcome this condition by strict attention to hygiene, drinking plenty of water, and taking World's Tonic, which is a great awakener of the whole system, cleaning, refreshing and building up the vital organs, thereby restoring energy, strength and the joy of life. Get the genuine—imitations will not do the work. Sold by Carnahan's 114 East Sixth street, East End, and C. N. Semi-Pro Gridders To Open Championship Series Next Saturday At Central Park

Managers Cochran and Webster Outline Plans for Three Contests at Conference Tuesday Night; Both Elevens Call Upon Outside Talent for Added Strength; Lively Games Anticipated.

Offering promise of thrills galore for football fans of the district who will be without their customary high school gridiron entertainment during the coming weekend, the inaugural contest of the inter-city championship series between the East Liverpool Greys and the Wellsville Webster Bulldogs will be staged on next Saturday afternoon at Central park, Wellsville. The clash is scheduled for 2:30 o'clock.

This, substantially, was the joint announcement Wednesday of Manager George Cochran, of the Greys, and Manager Webster, of the Wellsville gridders.

Negotiations for the series reached a climax Tuesday night at a conference of the rival managers and team officials. In order that the series may be "interesting," from the standpoint of the players as well as the fans, in the words of the promoters, the winner will walk off with the entire receipts.

All strength possible will be recruited by the rival managers in their efforts to achieve victory. Manager Webster has completed arrangements, it is understood, whereby he is to bring outside talent to his assistance.

Manager Cochran is also gunning for grid talent and expects to round out an all-star aggregation. His first shot brought down Carl Bradley, New Cumberland ex-high school star, who weighs in at 190 pounds. Bradley, plays at half or on an end. He's reputed to be a clever open field runner and a strong defensive man.

The Greys, it was announced, have cut their squad to the following players: Centers, Walker; Keyholes and Lowary, guards; J. Smith, C. Smith and Shenkel tackles; Wright, Stein, Anderson and Pritchard, ends; Golden, Tope, Walters, Nedela, quarterbacks; Plant and McVey, halfbacks; Finley, Bailey, Eagle, Walters and Boso.

Additional players may be added to the roster as soon as Manager Cochran can come to terms with several prospects, it was announced.

NEW JOCKEY WILL HANDLE EPINARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Chronic friction between jockey and trainer was attributed by horsemen today as the reason for Pierre Wertheimer's decision to allow a rider, other than Everett Haynes, to have the leg up on Epinard in the event that another international race is arranged for the French champion. It was said that Haynes and Eugene Leigh, the trainer, have not been on the best of terms for some time. The jockey's handling of Epinard in his three races on American tracks has been the subject of much criticism.

Wertheimer plans to sail for home on Saturday, taking Haynes with him. Epinard will be left here in charge of Leigh.

BIG TEN TEAMS IN SPOTLIGHT

Michigan and Illinois Will Fight for Supremacy.

By Carl L. Turner.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 15.—Any portion of the lid not blown off by the few and relatively unimportant contests already played this season in the Western conference football kettle will be ushered skyward with due ceremony next Saturday.

Unable to cross the other's path in last season's conference schedule, Illinois and Michigan, both of whom refuse to relinquish first place then, will find their orbits conflicting Saturday, when the "Big Ten" supremacy of 1923 will be decided in the minds of many, if a tie does not result.

Other than that, the Illinois-Michigan affair probably will eliminate one of the two leading contenders from the race this year, besides furnishing the occasion for dedicating a new $1,700,000 stadium at Urbana, Illinois.

On the face of last Saturday's results, Illinois would appear the favorite. Coach Zuppke's gridgers scored 40 points to Butler's 10 last week, while the Wolverines extended themselves to win from the Michigan Aggies, a team in about the same class as Butler.

The mighty "Red Grange," who worked out against Butler, will be on hand Saturday to aid his team in attempting to end Michigan's chain of victories, barring accident, it was said. Durability of some twenty foot ball uniforms will be taxed when Minnesota and Wisconsin revive their annual grudge at Madison, this game being overshadowed in importance only by the Urbana contest. The Gophers are expected to take advantage of a weakness evident in Wisconsin's play thus far this season—their inability to break up forward passing. A glance at the showings of the two in non-conference battles last week, also would indicate Minnesota has the edge.

Both the Chicago line and backfield showed unusual ability against Brown. Unless the coaches are able to make the Hoosier line much more formidable than it was before Louisiana last Saturday, the Stag proteges should not find it difficult to shadow the Indians.

The other conference game, between last year's tailenders, Purdue and Northwestern, promises a real test for the Evanston, Ill., eleven, whose play thus far this season astonished fans and had been accustomed to seeing the purple finish last. The dope will have been upset if this melee does not prove an interesting battle from the start.

Ohio State takes on its neighbor, Ohio Wesleyan, Saturday, with both teams fighting as hard as though it were a conference battle. Wesleyan, whose football relations with State have not been broken in 25 years, has been preparing since the first of the season to beat State, according to Delaware rumblings.

Probably Wesleyan would rather win the game Saturday than any or all of the other games scheduled. Their first stringers were not overworked last week against Ohio Northern, and reports here are to the effect that this was decided upon with the Ohio State game in view.

After trouncing Purdue and holding the strong Iowa aggregation to a scoreless tie, State is confident. A loss to the Methodists probably would be reflected in later conference games and Coach Wilce is not taking the Wesleyan game lightly.

Since the return of his gridgers Monday he has had them on the field every afternoon, attempting to strengthen every department. If the MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 15.—Though defeated by Pitt the West Virginia football squad earned an extra day of rest and when they reported Tuesday afternoon the Mountaineer athletes were in high spirits instead of being depressed. The men worked hard before the Pitt game and fought while the battle waged with all their strength. They were still feeling the effects of their long uphill fight on their return Sunday and Dr. Spears elected to give them a holiday.

Today the whole squad settled down to work and few teams envy the Geneva College eleven, which plays here in the new Stadium this Saturday, its position on the Mountaineer card.

The past weekend was not very profitable for West Virginia, the freshmen eleven losing to the Washington and Jefferson plebes while the Mountaineer regulars were dropping a game to Pitt. The double setback was not to West Virginia's liking and in their games at the Stadium this week the Mountaineer varsity and freshmen athletes will make amends.

Geneva is strong and according to Jim Quinlan, Mountaineer scout, who saw the Sackmen trim Bethany last week the Mountaineers will not have

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—What local fans believe is the biggest step ever taken by a Toronto team so early in the season was the signing yesterday of the Akron pros to come to Toronto this Sunday, replacing the Cleveland Panthers, who, inside rumor to the management here said, were not "just up to snuff."

One Stenberville boy, according to plans telegraphed here by the Akron management, will play the game for the Akronites—Charles West, negro, who signed up with the Indians several months ago but who has not yet gone into the game for them.

"Goose" Mundy, East Liverpool's representative on the Toronto machine, and "Slippery" Seeds, the sensational Salem lad, will attract scores of fans from the up-river section, it is believed.

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

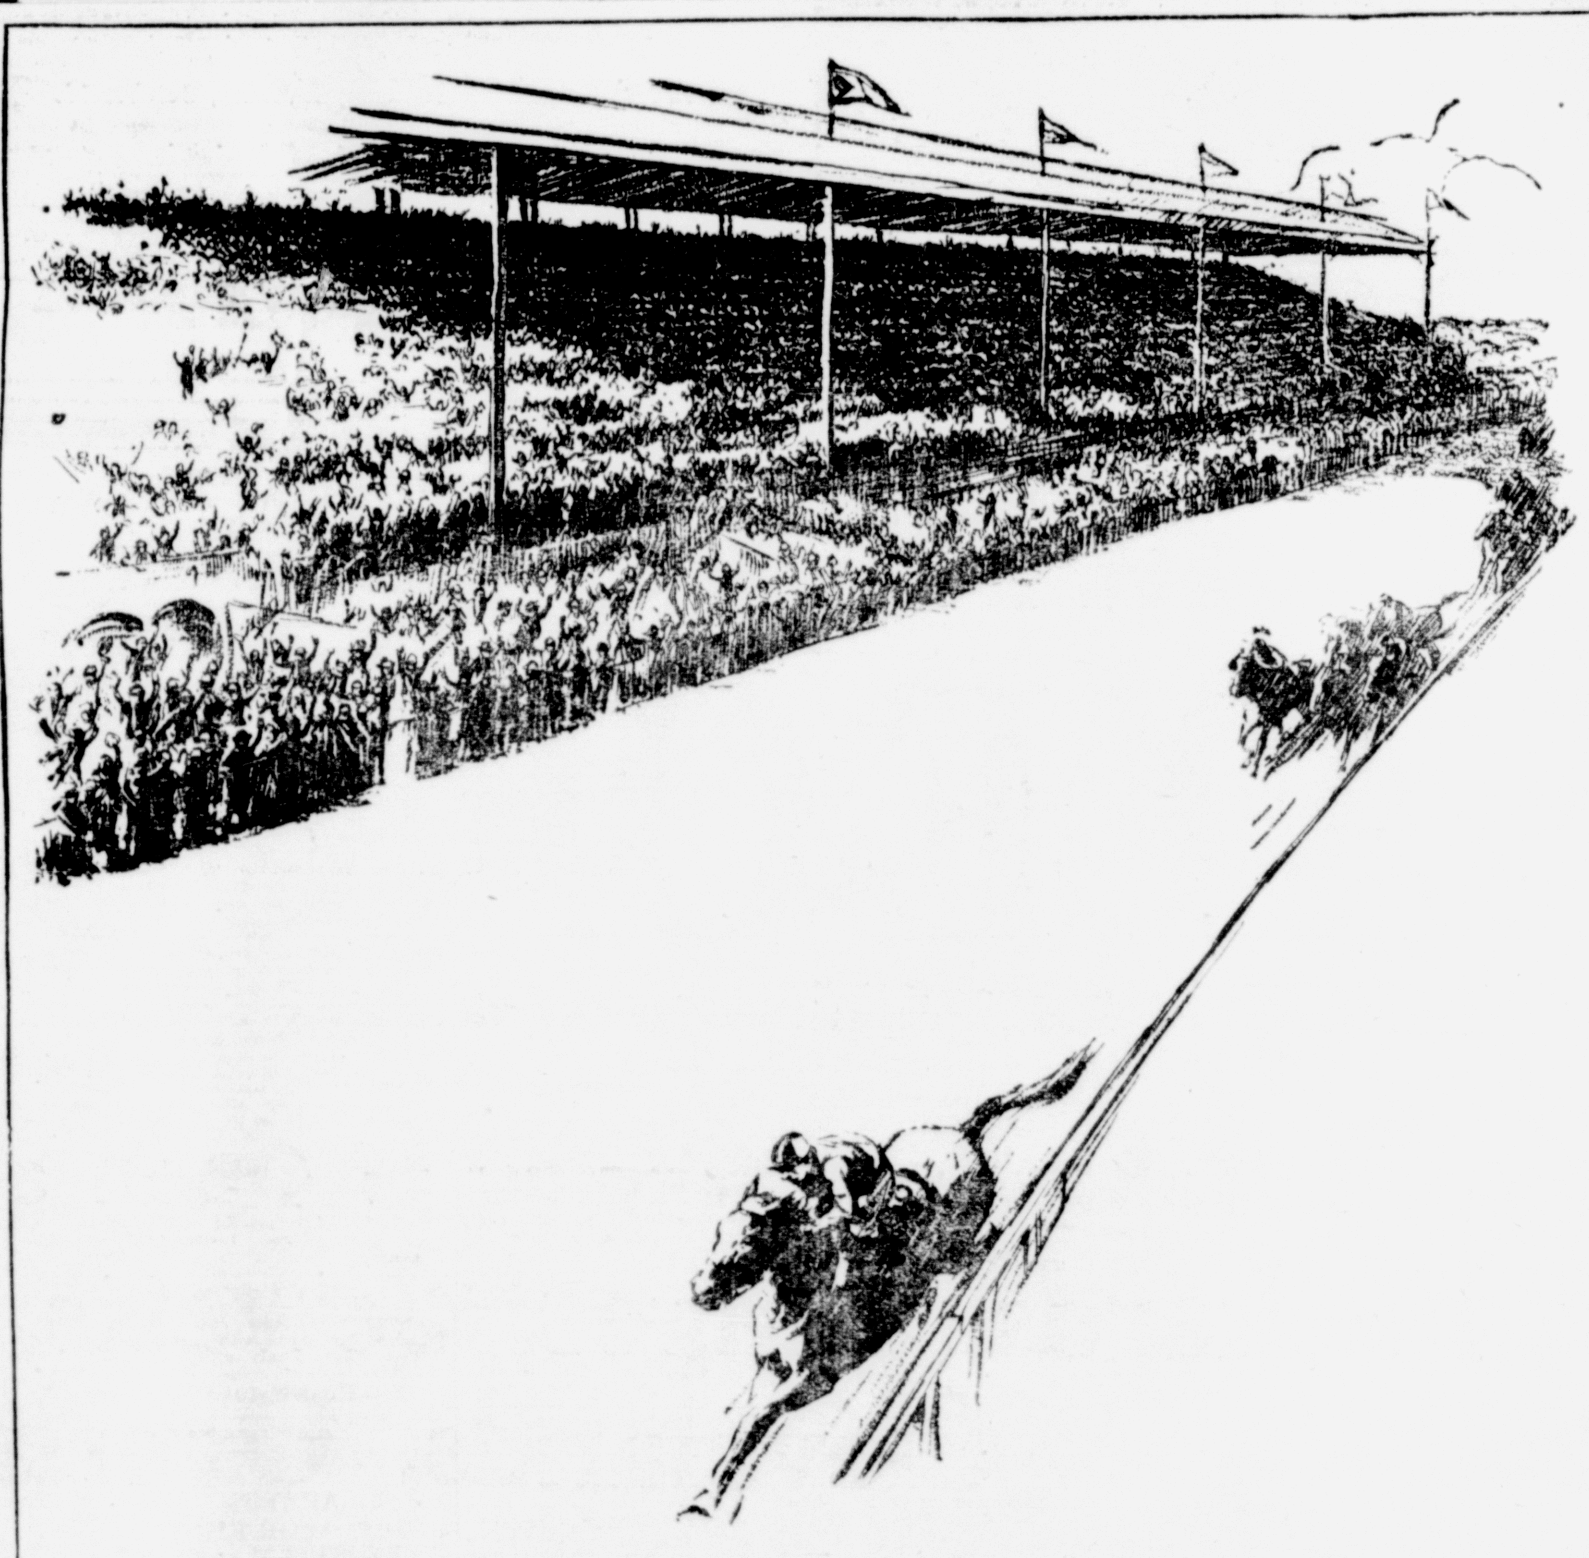

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Brother Kelly is on a train, en route to his California home; Frank Frisch and Ross Young are about to sail for Europe on a tour of the world with the Giants and White Sox; Helme Sand is playing the one-day stands with a barnstorming outfit; Jimmy O'Connell has returned to the coast and Cozy Dolan is still wandering about, trying to remember what he forgot.

This was the status of the famous O'Connell-Dolan case today after Judge Landis left this city for Chicago, reiterating his vow to sift the sad business to the bottom or somewhere. There remain a few loose strands to be woven into the skein. Obviously, nothing further can be done about an investigation until the principal characters can be re-assembled. This will happen next spring, if at all. McGraw, Frisch and Young will then be with us again after a protracted tour abroad and may or may not have something to contribute to the gaiety of the occasion.

Be that as it might, it is all too probable that further investigations will mark time, pending their return. You can go to the carpet with all the money you have that nothing definite will transpire with McGraw in Europe.

Hogan, former W.J. man, is playing this year with Akron for the first time, as is also Wilson, last year's tackle with Harvard.

CARNEGIE W. J.
MEET SATURDAY

Contest Draws Attention of Tri-state Fans.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 15.—Washington will be the scene for the gridiron fans of the Tri-State district on Saturday for the game of major importance in this entire section will be the annual meeting of the eleven of Carnegie Tech and Washington and Jefferson college.

No rivals could possibly have staged more exciting encounters than those which occurred between them during the last four years and both have done through the present season undefeated and with impressive records. They are the only members of the "Big Four" of this section not beaten. West Virginia and Pitt both leading met with reverses.

In 1920 Carnegie Tech won from W. & J. by a score of 6 to 0. In 1921 the Tartans were beaten 14 to 0, two fumbled punts giving the Presidents their scores. In 1922, the Skibos were even more unfortunate for they completely outplayed the Presidents only to have Charles West make a spectacular catch of the pickin after it had been batted into the air by a Tartan, and an even more brilliant dash for the touchdown that tied the game after Tech had led 7 to 0 for practically the entire game.

Last year the Skibos were beaten 9 to 7 a placement field goal by Captain Widerquist bringing defeat to them.

Graduate Manager R. M. Murphy predicts that a crowd of more than 20,000 will witness the game. Reserved seats are now on sale here. Carnegie Tech has secured 4,000. The Tartan cheering contingent will come here on special trains and by automobile. The Skibo undergarment body will be accompanied by the picturesque Kittle band of the school.

A doubleheader will be offered the thousands attending the "classic" as at 1 o'clock the Washington and Jefferson freshmen and the Carnegie Tech players will play. The kickoff in the major contest of the day will take place promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

W. & J. hopes to have its full strength available for the clash with Carnegie Tech but Head Coach Morrow doubts whether Captain Kopf, Niehaus, and Long will be in condition to get into the game Saturday. They are making a very slow recovery from the hurts they suffered in games this year and last in the backfield. He is the heaviest man on the Bison squad and one of the most consistent players. He is a senior.

McWHORTER BEST
BETHANY TACKLE

BETHANY, Oct. 15.—Kyle McWhorter the 210 pound Bison guard, is accredited with having made more tackles than any other man on the Bethany squad. McWhorter came to Bethany last year after having played two years of college football at James Millikin university, where he was in the backfield. Since coming to Bethany he has been used on the line in a guard position although he has been tried both this year and last in the backfield. He is the heaviest man on the Bison squad and one of the most consistent players. He is a senior.

Speed in Wooster Attack.

WOOSTER, Oct. 15.—Coach Boles of the Wooster college football team faces a hard task this week. He must strengthen the Wooster defense and must get more speed into the attack. Wooster looked weaker in both departments in the defeat by Akron last Saturday than any Wooster team has looked for years.

The varsity squad did not practice Monday evening. Instead Coach Boles allowed his tired warriors to rest another day. The entire team met for a long blackboard talk in the evening in which the Akron game was gone over carefully and in which Boles outlined the work for this week. The Wooster eleven will trek out of town this week. Wooster plays Miami at Oxford and will be the attraction for the Homecoming game there. It is expected that a changed line-up will represent Wooster for this game.

The next home game will be October 25 with Reserve. This will be a battle with the team from the unexpected strength shown by Reserve, this game may be the battle the homecomers want to see.

CARNEGIE - W. - J. MEET SATURDAY

Contest Draws Attention of Tri-state Fans.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 15—Washington will be the mecca for the grid-iron fans of the Tri-State district on Saturday for the game of major importance in this entire section will be the annual meeting of the eleven of Carnegie Tech and Washington and Jefferson college.

No rivals could possibly have staged more exciting encounters than those which occurred between them during the last four years and both have done through the present season undefeated and with impressive records. They are the only members of the "Big Four" of this section not beaten. West Virginia and Pitt both being met with reverses.

In 1920 Carnegie Tech won from W. & J. by a score of 6 to 0. In 1921 the Tartans were beaten 14 to 0, two fumbled punts giving the Presidents their scores. In 1922, the Skibos were even more unfortunate for they completely outplayed the Presidents only to have Charles West make a spectacular catch of the pigskin after it had been batted into the air by a Tartan, and an even more brilliant dash for the touchdown that tied the game after Tech had led 7 to 0 for practically the entire game.

Last year the Skibos were beaten 9 to 7 a placement field goal by Captain Widerquist bringing defeat to them.

Graduate Manager R. M. Murphy predicts that a crowd of more than 20,000 will witness the game. Reserved seats are now on sale here. Carnegie Tech has secured 4,000. The Tartan cheering contingent will come here on special trains and by automobile. The Skibo undergraduate body will be accompanied by the picturesque Kiltie band of the school.

A doubleheader will be offered the thousands attending the "classic" at 1 o'clock the Washington and Jefferson freshmen and the Carnegie Tech freshmen will play. The kickoff in the major contest of the day will take place promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

W. & J. hopes to have its full strength available for the clash with Carnegie Tech but Head Coach Morrow doubts whether Captain Kopf, Niehaus, and Long will be in condition to get into the game Saturday. They are making a very slow recovery from the hurts they suffered in games this season. While Coach Morrow feels that they will be needed Saturday, he does not want to send them into the game and sacrifice them for the remainder of the season.

McWHORTER BEST BETHANY TACKLE

BETHANY, Oct. 15—Kyle McWhorter, the 210 pound Bison guard, is credited with having made more tackles than any other man on the Bethany squad. McWhorter came to Bethany last year after having played two years of college football at James Millikin university, where he was in the backfield. Since coming to Bethany he has been used on the line in a guard position although he has been tried both this year and last in the backfield. He is the heaviest man on the Bison squad and one of the most consistent players. He is a senior.

Too Costly Wedding.

CONSTANTINOPLE—The Turkish government's devotion to rigid economy and its intention to see that its followers live within their means are exemplified by the following: A government official is to be tried under the summary law for "celebrating his marriage with an opulence incompatible with his status."

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using the well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugist, pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes. Avoid disappointment by asking your drugist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. LOGAN.—When fire communicated to gasoline soaked gloves worn by Clarence Phillips, truck driver, he was severely burned. The skin peeled from both hands from wrist to finger tips.

POTTERY WORKER ALMOST WELL

After suffering with painful rheumatic joints and stomach trouble for several years he finds great relief in "VENDOL."

"I'm not completely well yet but I'm sure a bottle or two more will fix me up in first class shape," gladly stated Mr. Edward Zink, an employee of the Harker Pottery Co., when asked by the Vendol Specialist at Mathews' Medicine Store how he liked Vendol.

"I've suffered with sickness at the stomach quite a lot during the last few years, in fact I have to be very careful what I ate or I'd have terrible spells of indigestion and nausea. This brought on other troubles especially rheumatism in the joints and nothing I took helped me the least little bit until I started to take Vendol."

"As I stated before, while I am not completely well, I am feeling so much better and believe a bottle or two more of Vendol will do the work."

The quick action of Vendol on the organs of digestion and elimination have relieved thousands in this section. When these organs—the stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and the blood—are in good order suffering from indigestion, nausea, gas in the stomach, aching and stiff joints, headaches, nervousness, dizziness and other troubles quickly disappear.

The Vendol Specialist at Mathews' Medicine Store says: "No one should confuse Vendol with any other medicine they have taken for this new tonic discovery will prove different. I want everyone to call on me and hear the merits of this great remedy."

Avoid disappointment by asking your drugist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Bureau of Standards Trying to Rebuild Barrels of Guns

WASHINGTON.—Reclamation of worn-out machine-gun barrels is under study by the United States Bureau of Standards.

If this phase of war preparation work is successful the Government would be saved millions of dollars in case of a great conflict, according to officials.

The plan is to plate the bore with nickel, or other suitable metal, and then resort to re-filing. What the process was suggested only to be found unworkable some time ago, progress in the science of electro-plating has been so rapid that it is believed success will attend efforts now in progress.

"Gun barrels wear out through erosion of the rifling bands," according to officials. "When these are worn down to a certain point the rifling is insufficient to produce the whirling of the bullet essential to accuracy."

"If the rifling could be rebuilt the gun would again be serviceable. This the bureau hopes can be done if a sufficiently hard and dense deposit can be plated into the bore. The metals considered best for the purpose are nickel, cobalt, iron and chromium."

Machine guns particularly suffer from service because of the rapidity with which the projectile is fired. Some guns discharge several hundred shots a minute.

Houses with the ground floor mounted on a revolving platform, divided into three rooms, each of which may be brought to the sunny side of the house as desired, have been built in Germany.
